

A STATE OF SIEGE

MAN SERIOUSLY INJURED

ITALIAN GOVERNOR

Warns People of Tripoli That They Must be Obedient

ROME, Oct. 7 (via frontier).—Today's advices from Tripoli state that the Italian governor, Rear Admiral Boreo D'Onofrio, has issued a proclamation announcing that the town is in a state of siege and warning the population that obedience would be exacted. The commandant of the Italian forces that have been landed addressed the sailors today, instructing them in their duties of maintaining order and of protecting the consulates from possible attack. It is reported that Vice Admiral Abruzzi, considering that the acute state of war has passed, has submitted to the king a plan to organize a scientific expedition into the interior of Tripoli. He proposes to study the flora, fauna and water courses and proceeding south through Central Africa eventually open up the country as yet unexplored or little known.

According to further advices from Tripoli the small Italian warships are engaged in searching for and removing mines that were laid by the Turks in Tripoli harbor in order that the transport bearing the troops from Italy may enter in safety. Nearly the entire body of the Tripolitan police has offered to enter the Italian service and similar offers have been received from other local officials.

DUCHESNE MAY DIE

Man Fell Through a Trap Door
Into Cellar

Francois Xavier Duchesne of 23 Pawtucket street is today confined to the Lowell hospital, suffering from injuries received late yesterday afternoon by falling through a trap door into a cellar, and the attending physicians cannot as yet say whether or not he will recover.

The accident occurred at 4.45 o'clock yesterday afternoon in the shoe repairing shop of Adelard Plourde, 232 Allen street. Duchesne was engaged in a friendly conversation with the owner of the place and was sitting near the trap door leading to the cellar, which was opened. He arose to go out, and not seeing the trap door, he walked into it and landed in the cellar.

The unfortunate man was picked up in an unconscious condition and was carried up stairs. The ambulance was summoned and Duchesne was removed in haste to the Lowell hospital, where he is still in a semi-conscious condition. The attending physicians made a thorough examination of their patient, but when asked today as to the extent of the injuries, they could not say, only that he has internal injuries and that his life is in danger.

NEW EVENING SCHOOL

Howard Street School to be Used for That Purpose

The committee on evening schools has decided to open the Howard street schoolhouse for evening school purposes, and has appointed Miss Alice Garrison as teacher. Miss Garrison has had seventeen years' experience in evening school work in the Allen avenue and Greenbush schools, and is well adapted to the work of her new position. The school will open Monday evening next.

Must Go to School

Truant Officer Thornton has examined all persons between the ages of 16 and 21 employed in the Lawrence mill and 134 of these examined will be obliged to attend the evening school. Similar examinations will be made in other mills, and Mr. Thornton says he understands that there are 250 or more in the Massachusetts mills who will have to attend the evening schools.

COLUMBUS DAY

Plans For the Parade and the
Banquet Announced

A very interesting meeting of the committee in charge of the Columbus day celebration was held last night at the rooms of the local council of the Knights of Columbus and considerable routine business was transacted. Every member of the committee was present and the different reports thus far given out show good work on the part of those who are at the head of this observance.

Marshal Thomas E. Delaney reported that the militia had decided to take part in the parade and that the Holy Name societies of the different churches had also accepted the invitation to turn out.

The Polish and Greek guards have also signified their intentions to appear in the parade, as well as a large delegation from the Portuguese parish. The parade, according to plans, will be one of the largest and best in appearance in the history of Lowell, providing these plans come to maturity.

The military delegation will be quite large, for in addition to the militia companies and the Polish and Greek guards, the G. M. L. Cadets, the A. G. Cadets, Garde d'Honneur, Garde Frontence and Garde Saere Coeur will participate, as well as the Wolf Tote Guards. The parade will probably be in four divisions, the different marshals and the route to be announced Monday.

A committee consisting of William P. Thornton, William F. Gargan and Henry J. Hoops was appointed to meet the committee appointed for the day by the city government.

The Knights of Columbus and the Holy Name societies will march from the square to St. Peter's church, instead of the Sacred Heart, for services and the civic parade will form on the South common at 19 o'clock.

TO PREVENT BED SORES

Both physicians and nurses greatly dread the formation of bed sores, so likely to occur on the backs of patients long confined to bed. The pressure of the body and the perspiration, often cause almost incurable sores.

By dusting the patient freely with Comfort Powder several times daily all such trouble is prevented. Caroline Angus, trained nurse, New York, says: "It certainly keeps the sick comfortable and is a certain preventive and cure for bed sores." Comfort Powder is a skin healing wonder. E. S. Sykes' signature is on the genuine.

The preacher at the mass which will be celebrated at 8.45 o'clock will be Rev. James Quinn, O. M. I., of San Antonio, Tex., who is well known in this city as an able and forceful speaker.

The plans for the banquet in the evening were discussed and the D. L. Page Catering company was awarded the contract for the dinner, at which it is expected 500 people will sit around the festive board.

The committee will meet again tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock in the council rooms and Tuesday night a special meeting will be held at the same place at which time the new chairman of the local council, Rev. W. George Mullin, curate at St. Peter's church, who was recently appointed to this position by Archbishop O'Connell, will address the members. Rev. Fr. Mullin is a very interesting speaker and no doubt the members of the order will turn out in large numbers.

A number of the local mills as well as some of the large department stores have decided to close their places of business on this day.

The mills that have already decided to close on Columbus day are the Merrimack Mfg. Co. and the Hamilton Mfg. Co., and to this effect the two latter have sent the following letters to Grand Knight Henry J. Hoops:

Mr. Henry J. Hoops, Grand Knight, Lowell Council, Knights of Columbus, 120 Hampshire St., Lowell, Mass.

Dear Sir:—Yours of the 5th inst. is at hand and in reply to same we would state that the mills of this company will be closed Columbus day, Oct. 12, 1911.

Yours truly, ments for that day. Aldermen Flanagan and Jodoin and Councilmen Deland, Conner and Gargan, will meet Monday night at 8.30 o'clock to complete arrangements for the observance.

The great portion of the time of the police court this morning was taken up with the complaint against Frank L. Peabody of Dracut, charged with selling watered milk. He pleaded not guilty and was represented by Attorney Stanley E. Quinn. The chairman of the board of health appeared for the government. The commonwealth introduced its testimony and the defense had just proceeded to call witnesses and had begun to examine the first witness the defendant, Frank L. Peabody, when Judge Bailey thought that on account of the importance of the case and technical testimony that it had better be continued until Monday morning at 11 o'clock. The assistant milk inspector, James D. Hill, and the inspector of milk, vinegar and other food products, Melvin N. Master, testified for the government.

Brookline Firemen Had Big Battle on Their Hands

BOSTON, Oct. 7.—Brookline firemen had a hard battle last night in extinguishing a fire in the big electrical works of Holtzer-Cabot corporation located on Station street, in that town.

Two alarms in quick succession called the department to the fire, and on reaching the big five-story building and finding it a mass of flames, help was secured from Boston.

The fight against the flames was a difficult and dangerous one, because of the character of the contents of the structure. The firemen were cautioned against entering or approaching too near the blazing structure because of explosion of chemicals and the dense poisonous smoke, almost sure death if inhaled.

It was spectacular, the leaping flames making a beacon that lighted the sky and was seen for miles around. The fire spread to the Brookline Storage Warehouse at midnight, an immense structure adjoining the Holtzer-Cabot Manufacturing company's factory and the firemen had all they could do to stop its spreading further. The fire started in the wooden building in rear of the five-story stone structure of the electrical manufacturing company's plant and spread rapidly through the stone building. The first alarm was sounded shortly after 11:30 o'clock and was followed closely by a second. The Boston department was then called on for assistance from Roxbury and Jamaica Plain, as well as from Brighton.

By midnight the entire town was alarmed. It looked at that time as if the firemen would fail in confining the blaze because of their inability to cope with it at close quarters. But the rain had so thoroughly drenched the roofs surrounding the structure that they were successful in holding it largely to the electrical works.

An estimate of the loss because of the valuable machinery and electrical material in the factory was given as over $150,000.

The Holtzer-Cabot electric factory is in the heart of Brookline village, and employs over 350 men and women.

ALL THE PARIS BANKS

Were Not Prepared to Pay in Gold

PARIS, Oct. 7.—Persons having occasion to cash checks in the middle of September learned to their surprise that none of the Paris banks was prepared to pay in gold. An American gentleman who presented a check for 3000 francs at the bank of France was given only 500 in gold and his request for more, refused.

The boulevard branch of one of the largest French banks, which usually starts the day with from 25,000 to 50,000 francs in gold, recently had 1000 and was unable to obtain more. Payment was made in five-franc pieces, which are legal tender up to any amount; indeed, the dividends of government stock are always paid in these bulky coins.

This stoppage of the gold issue is mainly due to the fact that the agents of a number of American banks were buying up gold as fast as they could, paying 5 francs per 1,000 premium. In addition to sending messengers to cash checks and notes at every bank in the city, these agents took all the gold from the big department stores until the attention of the directors of the bank of France was attracted to the abnormal demands for gold from these establishments, and immediately curtailed the issue of gold to banks and large commercial houses likely to pay it out of the country. One consequence was that the public, hearing what the banks were doing, was disposed to hoard gold too and not to pay it into the banks. Considerable gold was therefore temporarily out of circulation.

They Expect War
Everyday people in France certainly have been afraid that war was coming. The common people of Paris, having in mind the hardships that they have been through, have been hoarding food, dried beans, dried fruits, preserved meats and other articles of food that a few months' storage will not damage. The great provision houses are entirely bought out of some lines of these goods. Another reason besides vague apprehension of a siege, has been the knowledge that should war begin, the prices of food would rise and the thrifty French housewife has taken the precaution to buy some sorts of food in advance when prices are normal.

Animal Specimens
Alfred M. Collins and E. Marshall South, of Philadelphia, have sailed from Marseilles on their way to Central African hunting fields to collect specimens of large and small animals for the Philadelphia Academy of Natural Sciences. They go by way of Alexandria, Port Said, Suez and Mombasa, British East Africa. Their expedition will organize at Nairobi, from where they design to penetrate to parts of equatorial Africa little known to the outside world. They take with them fifty cases of equipment bought in London for their party, which will number 100 native soldiers, porters and servants under the command of a professional white hunter, George H. Outram. Collins and South expect to be in the interior about three months, and to bring back for the museum specimens to be mounted entire of lions, rhinoceros, giraffe, hippopotamus, zebra, island, harebeest, smaller animals and butterflies. After they have finished the African raid they will return by way of India, China and Japan in the spring of 1912.

Aeroplane Scouting
Results of the aeroplane scouting at the French manoeuvres are agreed by the military critics to have been admirable. The scouts showed accuracy, energy and accuracy of observation, and yet the limitations of air scouting were never seen more clearly.

The aeroplane is a bird of the day. It rises with the dawn and ceases to fly with the twilight. During the night troops are free to move without any need of a plan of battle. The aeroplane is also a fair-weather bird, very useful during clear days, but obliged to seek shelter from high winds, and whose eyes are dulled by rain fog and cloud.

The most effective of Turenne's campaigns, that in Alsace, took place in winter. Austria was fought on December 2 and the battle of the Mar was contested in a snow storm. The budget for military aeronautics next year is $2,025,000. France will have about 200 army aeroplanes next summer.

ARMY AVIATORS

TO GIVE DEMONSTRATIONS AT ROCKINGHAM PARK

The grand aviation meet at Rockingham park, Salem, N. H., on Columbus day, next Thursday, Oct. 12, will be in the nature of a very practical demonstration of the value of the aviator and his aeroplane in actual warfare. The United States has now in regular service a number of licensed aviators who form the nucleus of an aerial war fleet, and three of these have been engaged for the aviation demonstrations next Thursday. Better known to Bostonians as the biplane winner in the tri-state race on Labor day last is Lieut. T. D. Milling of the U. S. army. He will be one of the aviators next Thursday, flying the Burgess-Wright biplane, which brought him back to the Harvard field after flying with the Harvard day after making the aerial circuit of Nashua, Worcester, Providence and Atlantic, Mass. Another will be Capt. Paul W. Beck of the U. S. army, who flies a 10 horsepower Curtiss biplane. He established the first official aerial mail route by flying with Postmaster General Hitchcock as a passenger, carrying U. S. mail. Still another will be Lieut. H. H. Arnold of the U. S. army. One feature of the aerial war manoeuvres will be to place in the hands of the aviators a number of the latest aerial stunts which rank high for daring as well as skill among the world's most famous aviators. A war balloon, operated by Sgt. Bonnet, the world's most famous aviator, will also figure in the programme. Bonnet will carry officers of the state militia up in his balloon for reconnoitering purposes and will prove a valuable assistance in scout duty. In the way of pure exhibition work Bonnet will make an ascent of at least two miles in his chair and from this dizzy height will make his death defying triple parachute drop. No other aviator has ever been able to accomplish this, and while he has had some very narrow escapes in negotiating his hair-raising feat, he has always managed to land on terra firma whole and unbroken, though bruised and badly scared.

The most interesting announcement in connection with the approaching aviation meet is that there is a very good prospect that we shall have the privilege of witnessing a performance of the first woman aviator in New England. This is Mlle. Dietrou, a petite and pretty French young lady, who recently came to this country from Paris to compete in the aviation meet at Nassau boulevard aerodrome, Long Island.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Oct. 7.—The chronology of the Los Angeles dynamiting case, which is set for trial next Wednesday, October 11, is as follows:

October 1.—Times newspaper plant destroyed by explosion and fire. Twenty men killed. Bombs found at home of General Harrison Gray Ous, proprietor of the Times, and Felix Zschandner, Secretary Merchants and Manufacturers association.

October 2.—Experts appointed by Mayor Alexander to investigate cause of disaster reported that high explosive, such as nitro-glycerine, had been used.

October 13.—Job Harriman, attorney representing labor union interests, questioned witnesses before coroner's jury eliciting statement that in their opinion explosion was caused by gas.

October 25.—Special grand jury, impaneled by Judge Bordwell, began sifting alleged evidence that three men known as J. B. Brice, Milton A. Schmitt and David Kaplan, had blown up the Times with "Eighty Per Cent Gelatin," purchased September 25 from Giant Powder Works at San Francisco.

May 4.—McManis taken before grand jury, who he made sworn statement accusing James B. McNamara of having blown up the Times, and declaring himself responsible for Llewellyn Iron Works explosion.

May 5.—Grand jury returned indictments against McNamara, Schmitt, Kaplan, John Doe and Richard Roe of thirteen murders in connection with Times explosion, and holding McNamara responsible jointly with John J. McNamara, for attempt to wreck Llewellyn Iron Works. McNamara arraigned. Bail asked. This dated May 9.

May 23.—Clarence S. Darrow arrived from Chicago to become chief counsel for McNamara. Time for entering pleas deferred to July 5.

July 6.—Instead of entering pleas, defense assailed jurisdiction of Judge Bordwell denying his right to try case, and moved to quash indictments.

July 12.—Bordwell overruled both motions. Defense filed exceptions. McNamara pleaded not guilty. Trial set for October 11, 1911.

This week is Quarter Week at the Lowell Five Cent Savings Bank.

DAMAGE IS $50,000

Fire in the Salinger Block at
Rochester, N. H.

ROCHESTER, N. H., Oct. 7.—Fire, which was discovered in the Salinger block in Central square at 11:20 last night, caused a loss of about $50,000 before it was extinguished.

The blaze was discovered by Edgar Varney, who was attending a dancing party on the third floor. Mr. Varney went into a lavatory and found the partitions burning fiercely. He returned to the dance hall and informed the gathering, all of whom left in safety, and afterward the alarm was sounded.

The building, which was one of the finest in the city, was four stories in height and was occupied on the street floor by Isadore Salinger & Son, dry goods dealers; on the second by the Merchants' club and Arthur M. Brock, barber, and on the third by the Peaslee Business college and a dance hall. The fourth floor was unoccupied.

The loss in the Salinger store was about $25,000, caused principally by smoke and water. To the Merchants' club and Brock's barber shop $500 and $500 respectively and to the college about $700. The building was damaged to the extent of nearly $25,000.

It is believed that the fire was caused by the blowing of the flame from a gas jet against the wall. The building stood on the site of another which was destroyed by fire in August, 1909, and rebuilt.

CHICAGO, Oct. 7.—It is generally understood that Congressman Henry T. Rainey will be made democratic national committeeman from Illinois to succeed Roger Sullivan. Sullivan was bitterly fought by William Jennings Bryan and is now opposed by Mayor Carter Harrison and the W. R. Hearst forces.

BOSTON, Oct. 7.—An attempt to escape from a cell in the Back Bay police station that came close to success was made by digging mortar from the cell bricks with a board with a nail fastened on the end, by Leon Guido, alleged poor box thief, who defrauded bail in the superior court yesterday.

By removing more than 25 bricks he had made a wide opening in the inner wall of the cell and was piercing the outer layer to a dark alley, when he was espied by a fireman in the station of engine 33 and ladder 8, adjoining.

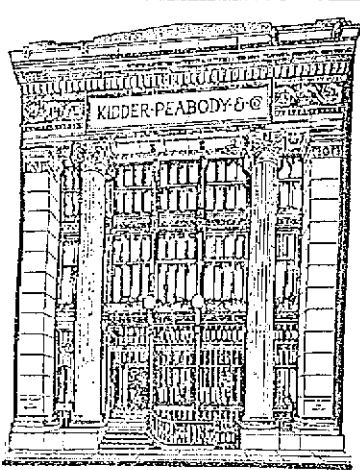

The police were notified and swooped down upon Guido. Guido was ironed and placed in another cell, with a special guard.

A pile of bricks by his side, accumulated with surprising rapidity, was testimony against him. So many were taken out that the opening left was

Purchases To Cover With Pool Manipulation Of Specialties Advanced Prices—There Was a Fall In the Common Stock

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—The opening prices on the stock exchange today were somewhat below yesterday's final range, although losses of the more active issues were not large. U. S. Steel, which closed yesterday at 58 1/2, opened with a block of 400 at 57 3/4. Western Union, Allis-Chalmers, and General Electric were unchanged. An inquiry for Reading which lifted it to a half point above yesterday's closing prompted an upward movement in the general market. St. Paul, C. P. and Atchafalpa made a similar gain and the general market was displaying increasing strength when the rise was terminated by the unloading of large blocks of U. S. Steel. Many thousands of shares of this stock were offered by the active bear profession, and it gave way from 58 1/2 to 57 3/4. Another unsettling influence was the sensational decline in Allis-Chalmers five per cent bonds, which opened 53 points lower at 92 and receded to 53. The common stock yielded 1 3/4 and the bid 2 1/4. The market closed firm. Purchases to cover with pool manipulation of various specialties turned the course of prices upward again and best figures of the session were reached. The effect of the slump in the Allis-Chalmers securities were off, despite a further fall in the common stock. American Tobacco, and affiliated issues were notably strong.

ARE WITHOUT FOOD

2000 Inhabitants of Black River
Falls Appeal For Aid

LACROSSE, Wis., Oct. 7.—The 2000 inhabitants of Black River Falls today are without food or shelter after spending a night on the hills watching the waters from the flood of the Black river overrun their town. Through Mayor McGee they sent out an appeal to the people of the country for assistance. The town continues cut off from the world by regular telegraph and telephone and it was only by again resorting to the expedient of sending a man up a telephone pole on the edge of the town that the cry for help could be sent out. The population fled yesterday without stopping to take extra clothing. They spent a disagreeable day under a pitiless rain but in the evening the weather cleared and there was less suffering from exposure during the night. All along the hills campfires burned while below in the darkness could be heard the rush of waters engulfing the city. The mayor of Black River Falls today said that it would be several days before the flood receded sufficiently to permit even an examination of the ruins and that "he need of relief was imperative. Immediately after his message was received here, a special meeting of the Lacrosse council was called to consider relief measures.

The attempt took place on Sept. 29 and was discovered by pure accident. The firemen were in their smoking room swapping stories. From a window they could look into two cells out of the dozen and more that are in a row in the station. Guido's happened to be one of these cells.

But for the firemen, Guido could have made a getaway. He had 15 minutes before a guard was due to pass his cell door again, and then, by standing in front of the hole he could have hidden it.

The next day Guido was arraigned in the district court, pleaded not guilty to a charge of robbing poor boxes in St. Catharines church, Belvidere street, Black River, and he was held out by a man who said he was William Hickey, a Dorchester contractor.

Patrolman McKinnon, arresting officer, waited about all day for him yesterday and when he did not appear in the superior court a default warrant against him was sworn out.

Guido has served years in prison for stealing from church poor boxes, which is the only kind of the ever charged against him. Four terms, aggregating six years, he has spent in Sing Sing, another term in Philadelphia and other terms in the west.

He has gone under the names of Levine, Cartone, Munnere and Bernard, but always has been identified by Bertillon measurements.

and assured them that he was as anxious as they were to remedy the evil and stated that he would attend the next regular meeting of the board and inform the members of what was being done to correct the nuisance.

The directors will report on the matter at the regular meeting, October 12.

The directors have received a communication to the effect that a Boston firm is desirous of locating in North Chelmsford. This firm requires a building of three or four stories, containing about 15,000 square feet floor space, suitable for an industry not as yet existing in this locality or even in

RACE FOR BENNETT TROPHY

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Oct. 7.—With only one balloon, the Berlin II, still in the air, the race for the Bennett trophy, which started from here on Thursday, is now between the United States and Germany. Of the five balloons in the international race that have landed, the Buckeye, an American balloon, made the greatest distance, 650 miles. The Berlin II must beat this mark to lift the cup.

No word has been received from the German balloon since the race started. All the balloons that have come to earth were caught in a storm in Minnesota. The latest balloon reported down is the Cordor II, representing France. It fell last night near Mingo, Ia., after having been blown back more than a hundred miles.

THE COURT CRITICS

Were Bitterly Assailed by President Taft Yesterday

POCATELLO, Idaho, Oct. 7.—In a speech before the chamber of commerce yesterday, President Taft bitterly assailed the critics of the United States supreme court and asserted his views as to the relations of government to business.

"I love judges and I love courts," said the president. "They are my ideals on earth that typify what we shall meet afterward in heaven under a just God. And when a court is doing its duty, when it is trying to interpret the law as it ought to be, to have it condemned and attacked and its motives questioned for mere political purposes, without any solid ground for attack, goes to my heart and I resent it with deep indignation."

Mr. Taft spoke with more feeling than he put into his Detroit and Waterville speeches but along the same lines. He said he had received many criticisms on the point but as yet he had failed to receive an answer to his challenge to W. J. Bryan and other publicists to give a single combination in restraint of trade which ought to be condemned under the supreme court's interpretation of the anti-trust law in the Standard Oil and the Tobacco trust cases.

"What distinguishes this country from any other one," said the president, "is the supreme court that we have in Washington. To turn upon that court and to question its motive and to attack it seems to me to lay the axe at the root of the tree of our civilization."

Mr. Taft referred to the supreme court's disposal of the Standard Oil and the tobacco cases as "two great decisions."

"There were two of the greatest trusts that existed," he said, "and in the working out of the decrees the court had to make a remedy. The Standard Oil Co. presented all the phases of illegality and criminality necessary to establish a monopoly at a time when they did not feel the necessity for concealing their methods or their motives. The tobacco trust represented an organization made in anticipation of the operation of the law, helped out by the advice of cunning lawyers in order to avoid its operation. But against them the decree of the supreme court has been pronounced."

Mr. Taft said that it was unfortunate that the country had got into a condition that had required a remedy like this. A remedy of any kind, he added, was bound to produce for a time, not business disaster, but a difficult situation that might make business slow. But after the solution had been worked out, he saw no reason why the country should not go on to greater and greater prosperity.

"To one in my place," said the president, "there is no discretion with reference to the trial of cases brought to the attention of the executive as violations of the law. The prosecutions must go on. It is not for the executive to say that he can withhold criminal prosecutions or any kind of criminal prosecutions, just to help business. Business must reform itself, and these executives must perform their duty under the oath of office that I took and under the oath that those under me took."

"But when that part of the business community that thought that the anti-trust statute did not mean anything understands that it is to be enforced, then we may reach a solution that will enable the business community to settle down on a proper and legitimate basis. I hope the time is near at hand when we must get together for prosperity. We must eliminate, so far as we can, this desire to attack wealth earned by thrift and gathered by foresight, attention and industry, because that is to set up a feeling that breeds

ATHLETICS' TWO STAR CATCHERS, WHO MAY STOP THE GIANTS

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 7.—Can Thomas and Lapp, the Athletics' two star catchers, stop the Giants' speedy base runners from pilfering the sacks in the coming world's series? This question is now being asked by the fans. The New York club has the best base running team in the country this season. Devore, Murray, Snodgrass, Merkle, Herzog and Doyle are series last fall it was predicted by many that the Cubs would run the bases as they pleased with Thomas behind the bat, but how he prevented them is now part of baseball history. Lapp will be used whenever Coombs pitches. The latter claims he twirls better ball when the former is behind the bat. Should Thomas be injured Lapp will take his place.

no good for the result.

"I believe we are going on to a greater future. If we had allowed these combinations to go on and develop the only remedy would have been to change by force the power thus concentrated in the hands of a few individuals to the state and then we should have had state socialism. It was the inevitable result of the government toward trusts unless broken up."

"Now we can get back to competition. We must get back to competition as an element in the country. If it is impossible then let us go to socialism for there is no way between. I for one am not discouraged as yet in the hope that we may return to a legitimate and independent competition. I am an individualist and not a socialist."

Mr. Taft then pleaded for kinder feeling between various elements of the community. He declared the business of "muck-raking" would cease if people would disregard the attack upon the motives of those exercising authority and accept proper motives until the motives are shown to be improper.

"It is good times, it is prosperity," the president concluded, "when people are happy, when wages are high, when prices are normal, when the family has shoes and something to eat and the children go to school. These are times when everybody is happy."

Mr. Taft said the railroads were entitled to proper treatment and should be saved from the attacks of the demagogue or the man who would seek by the position of his victim to climb over his shoulders in popular esteem.

THE WORLD'S SERIES Managers Are Swamped With Ticket Orders

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—Within 24 hours after the announcement Thursday of the schedule of games for the 1911 world's baseball championship, applications for seats came in such numbers that last night the offices of the New York baseball club were flooded with check-book messages. The demand was so overwhelming that a score of extra clerks were hurriedly engaged to attack the mountain of mail. The applications were too numerous to count last night, but they ran up into many thousands and it was feared that each incoming mail brought more than the previous one.

In addition to the applications by mail, hundreds of fans, believing that they could gain an advantage by applying personally for tickets, went to the offices only to find that none would be issued until the advance sales began on Thursday. As fast as the clerk handled the letters into packages of a hundred and stamped them as taken care of first. The clerks were instructed particularly to watch out for "suspicious" letters, or applications which looked as though they might be from speculators or their agents. By the strict enforcement of the rule of only four tickets to one purchaser and the rejection of suspicious applications, it is hoped to keep speculation at a minimum.

At the Polo grounds here, where the first game will be called a week from today, the preparations are nearly complete for a crowd of nearly 60,000 people. If this number can be squeezed into the stadium now being completed by the erection of a new outfield bleacher section, the crowd will be the largest ever seen at a baseball game.

The world's series record attendance at any one game has not been less than 35,000. In 1910 the total number of admissions for the five games between Chicago and Philadelphia was 121,222, an average of less than 25,000 to a game.

At the rate applications are coming in, it is roughly estimated that more than a hundred thousand fans will seek admission on the opening day, nearly half of whom will be disappointed.

SURPRISE PARTY

A very pleasant surprise party was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ryne, 88 Linden street, Thursday evening in honor of their daughter, Mary, the occasion being her 18th birthday. Sixty young people gathered together and presented her a beautiful locket and chain. The presentation speech was made by Master George Stowell. Although taken by surprise Miss Ryne responded gracefully. The program was as follows: Piano selections by Miss Anna Sabourin, Master Leo Loughlin and Miss Evelyn Barry; violin selections by Master Wilbur Barry; songs by Miss Mary Ryne and Miss Yvonne O'Brien. A contribution by Mr. George Keene, entitled "The Courtship of Miles Standish," impromptu by Master Robert O'Leary; and Joe Bingley; fancy dancing by Miss Ethel Sabourin.

The harmony quartet, consisting of Miss Josephine Sabourin, Miss Sabina Ryne, John O'Grady and Thomas Kelly, sang "Let Me Call You Sweetheart." Miss Ryne was presented a beautiful handbag by the Misses Helen and Della Scamlin. Games were played and refreshments served, and the party broke up at a late hour.

THE LOWELL GUILD

Heard Reports at its Regular Meeting

A meeting of the Lowell Guild was held yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Edward N. Burke, in Nesmith street, with a large attendance.

The report of the milk station and district nurses was submitted by Miss Annie H. Mence as follows: "Number of calls, metropolitan, 1904; regular, including city station calls, 2937. From July 5 to Sept. 11 we had two extra district stations. From July 1 to August 25 we had a nurse for one hour on the Allen street playground for five days in each week. We also gave talks on personal hygiene to the older girls in the schoolrooms on Cheever, Common and Sumner streets."

"During August and September the milk station work was increased, as many of the babies were sick and needed extra attention. These calls kept Miss Chaudron and her assistants very busy."

"There are great opportunities for social work in connection with our work, and I think we would have better results if we could cooperate with those who could give more time to social work than we can."

It was decided to hold a Christmas sale in December.

BERLIN, Oct. 7.—A recent advertisement in a leading Berlin newspaper, the "Vossische Zeitung," offering a real prince in the marriage market at the extremely low price of $75,000, has caused widespread discussion. The announcement reads: "Prince, 23 years old, splendid appearance, of great general education and polish; wishes immediate marriage. Ready cash necessary, 300,000 marks. Marriage brokers not entertained. Offers, etc."

It is pointed out in many of the comments on this, even for Europe, extraordinary offer, that titles are the only things that have recently become cheaper, and it is hinted that perhaps the rise in the price of meat, vegetables and other household necessities is the cause of this diminution in value.

A prince, however, it is argued, is in reality a "sift" at $75,000. In the West End of Berlin a simple private professor has hitherto commanded that sum in the matrimonial market, while a medical man or a lawyer in good practice was not to be had below $600,000, and a doctor of philosophy commanded $25,000 at the very least. The contravertists are now asking what is likely to be the price of the many counts and barons on the market in the face of this low offer of a live prince.

Mule Invasion

The mule has begun an invasion of Germany. The omnibus company of Berlin has just received a shipment from South America, which are the first mules brought into Germany for work. Hitherto the mule has only been a curiosity of the zoological garden. The company is starting in an experimental way with a dozen, intending to increase the number later as soon as the experiment shall have been proved a success.

No doubt, however, is entertained as to the ability of the mule to maintain in the German climate his reputation for endurance under hard work. The expert having the matter in charge assures the company that eight mules will do the work of ten horses, that each mule will cost twenty-five percent less to keep than he will stand much rougher treatment and resist diseases much better than the horse; and finally his working life is placed at a maximum of thirty years.

The Bavarians are also growing interested in the mule and are discussing the feasibility of substituting him for the ox.

Looking Up Bloodhounds

The Prussian government has recently called on the police authorities of towns which keep bloodhounds for tracking criminals to report as to their success in using them. The reports sent in indicate that the police authorities are well satisfied with the results.

In nearly all cases where a trained bloodhound was put on the trail of thief or murderer soon after the deed, it succeeded in tracing him and causing his arrest. In many such cases the criminals were so surprised and dumfounded that they confessed their guilt. Even in instances where considerable time had elapsed before a dog could be obtained it was able to follow the criminal to his hiding place.

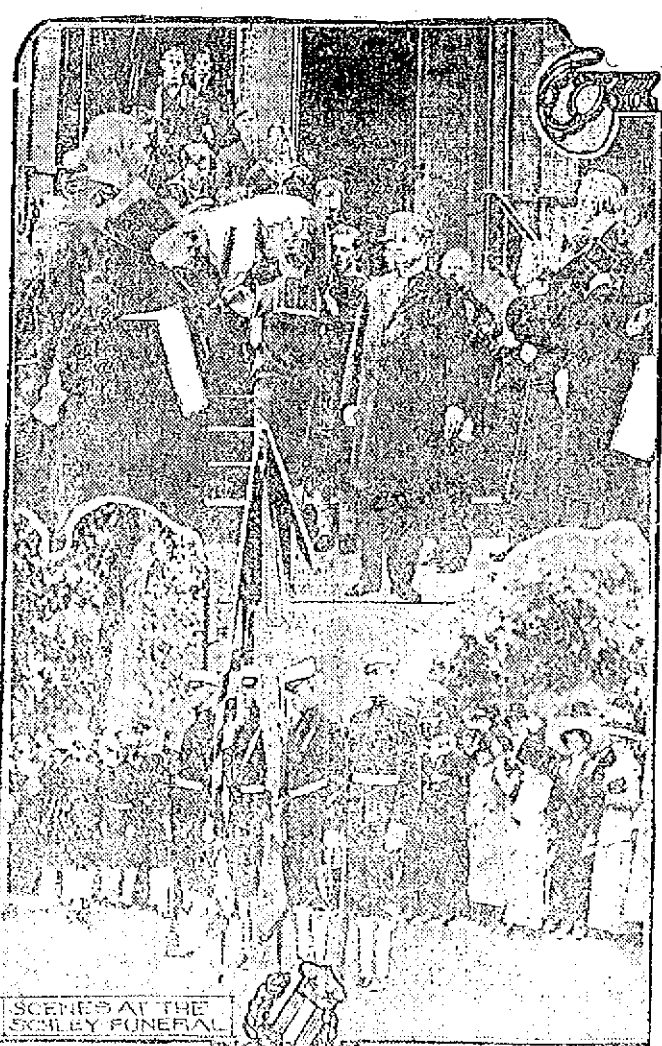

From some towns that introduced bloodhounds it is reported that a reduction in the number of thefts, burglaries, murders and other crimes has followed. From the reports it appears that the police expect still better results when the training of the dogs has made further progress. At present the demand is greater than the supply, and many of the animals in the service are still too young and inexperienced to do good work.

Wireless Telegraphy

An ambitious venture with wireless telegraphy is to be tried by the German government in the colony of German East Africa. At present that colony is without a direct cable connection with Germany and uses a British line. The government is planning a continuation to Cameroons of the telegraph line recently carried down the Moroccan coast to connect with the new Brazilian German cable.

It is further planned to send wireless messages across the vast Congo wilderness to German East Africa. The central station in that colony will be erected at Tabora, which lies about 175 miles south of Lake Victoria. It is about 2,000 miles from the Cameroons station, and a specially powerful equipment will be required. The authorities apparently entertain no doubt as to the success of the undertaking and they even expect to make substantial reductions in the cost of calling to East Africa.

Saturday, Oct. 7, is Quarter Day at the Lowell Five Cent Savings Bank, Deposit today.

SCENES AT THE FUNERAL OF REAR ADMIRAL SCHLEY AT WASHINGTON

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7.—Rear Admiral W. S. Schley was buried at Arlington with full naval and military honors. Every branch of the government honored the hero of Santiago. The streets were lined with hundreds of people as the longest and most imposing funeral since that of President Mc-Kinley escorted the gun carriage bearing his body to the National cemetery. The Rose Croix services of the Scottish Rite of Freemasonry were performed at the residence. Thousands stood bareheaded as the body was lowered into a grave the site of which Admiral Schley had selected several months ago.

THE NEED OF PUBLIC SPIRIT

We are glad to note that the treasury of the city of Lawrence is again supplied with funds to meet all present demands. The people of that city are showing good public spirit for which they are to be commended. No city can prosper unless the citizens take sufficient interest in its government and its welfare to give it a boost whenever they can.

The worst quality that can be shown by the average citizen is indifference to the public welfare as represented in the success of the city government. It is perhaps too much to expect that every citizen will realize his individual responsibility for the management of the municipality. But every man who has a vote has a share in the government of his city, his state, and his country, and it often happens that a single vote will decide a contest as between the friends and the enemies of good government.

Too much stress cannot be laid upon this matter of individual responsibility for right results in city government. With the proper appreciation of individual duty and with the added civic virtue of public spirit every city can prosper unless it be very seriously handicapped by an antiquated charter or by adverse conditions of some other kind.

Here in Lowell we are favored by Nature with two magnificent rivers meeting at the business centre of the city, two rivers that supply water power for many great industries. Some people imagine that Lowell, for some reason or other, has not the advantages for manufacturing purposes and industrial progress that are enjoyed by other Massachusetts cities. The sooner this idea is dropped the better. Lowell is all right. Her resources are equal or superior to those of any other city in the state, and they only await development. There are tracts of the very best land for residential and business purposes in the suburbs awaiting the call of enterprise. Some time ago a realty company was proposed that might build factories, and then lease them to manufacturing companies. That is a good idea, and one that is working most successfully in other cities. Haverhill may be mentioned as one of the cities in which a realty company is doing grand work for the community. This is an opportunity that the people of Lowell seem to let slip by. There are very many other opportunities of a similar kind that are not appreciated by the people of our city. Too many of our citizens have the idea that they have to go out of town to invest their money to advantage. That explains why so many of them have lost heavily in bogus mining stocks and various wild cat schemes. That also explains why outsiders, some as the Bradley Bros. of Lawrence, and a few more who might be mentioned, come in here to buy up real estate that seems to have no attraction for citizens of Lowell. The question might be asked: Have our Lowell citizens become blind to good business opportunities? It is time that we had a little better application of local public spirit among our citizens. It is time the men who are investing their money outside should make up their minds that they can do quite as well at home, and have the added assurance that in any case they will not lose their money.

It is the candid opinion of a good many shrewd business men in this city that unless we adopt the new charter and take a deeper interest in our municipal affairs the city of Lowell in about five or six years will be as deeply embarrassed financially as the city of Lawrence has been during the last few months. Lawrence has been victimized by bad management and a defective charter. Her people are sure to adopt a new charter at the coming state election, and then the down river city will start upon a new career of progress and prosperity that will eclipse anything in her past history. Her citizens have now become aroused and are evidently determined to lift her out of the slough of despond in which she has been deposited by mismanagement, fraud and political trickery.

It therefore behooves the city of Lowell to take an onward step at the same time in the adoption of the new charter so that the business of this city will be conducted on business principles, that responsibility will be centered so that the people will readily find where the blame lies if anything goes wrong and thus be able promptly and effectively to apply the remedy.

THE STATE TICKETS AND PLATFORMS

The democratic ticket and platform are now before the public, and both are progressive and up to date, while on the republican side the candidate who heads the ticket represents the hardshelled republican who would vote for a yellow dog if it wore a republican collar. The state in Governor Foss has one of the ablest and best executives it has ever had, and hence the duty and responsibility of his reelection rests upon the voters regardless of party. His partisanship is not of the offensive kind as in his appointments he selected republicans whenever he thought that fair play and the public interests would thereby be best subserved.

In his speech at the democratic convention, Governor Foss made an appeal for the reduction of import duties on foodstuffs and free raw materials and punctured some of the fulminations of the republican papers in regard to the reciprocity issue as they assailed the governor for its defeat. His Excellency, however, shows that it was the standpat republicans who first gave out the annexation bogey that defeated reciprocity with Canada. President Taft himself did this in his "parting of the ways" speech. Congressman Bennett of New York, Poelt of Pennsylvania and Gardner of Massachusetts were all parties to setting the annexation scare in motion.

But Governor Foss does not believe that reciprocity is a dead issue despite the fact that the standpatters have shown satisfaction at the action of Canada. The Canadians are not afraid of the reciprocity agreement when free from complicating issues injected to serve republican ends.

Governor Foss showed the inconsistency of the republican party on the tariff issue and ably answered the attacks directed at himself upon this issue.

In 1909 and 1910 the republicans of this state warmly commended the Payne-Aldrich tariff law, but this year, in view of the changed order of things, they have modified their attitude and now recommend a "reasonable and scientific revision," and even suggest that part of this scientific process be "downward." The national party promised revision downward, but gave revision upward, and it is now useless for the republicans of Massachusetts to attempt to retrieve the ground lost as a result of that national act of perfidy. As usual the republican platform is a dexterous combination of platitude and evasions. Senator Lodge, an artist in drafting ambiguous and non-committal platforms, could scarcely have done a better job.

In striking contrast is the platform of the democratic party, speaking out plainly and boldly for a federal income tax amendment, the popular election of United States senators, for the initiative and referendum in state legislation, the removal of the duties from foodstuffs and the raw materials of our manufactures. The planks for the development of agriculture, a permanent state finance commission and for a revision of our vicious tax system are also progressive and in line with the best public policy.

The record of Governor Foss was reviewed in the platform pointing out that special privilege no longer dictates in the executive chamber, that integrity, industry and zeal for the public interest have marked his service. Brave yet cautious, progressive yet deliberate, his business ability and added experience commends him to the suffrage of the people.

The fame of the late Admiral Schley is secure despite the efforts of those who tried to cast a doubt upon his prowess as a naval commander. His valor and his patriotism had been too often tested to be snuffed out by the friends of a jealous rival who claimed the honor of the Santiago naval victory won in his absence with Admiral Schley in command.

Dr. Harvey W. Wiley is back on the job as head of the federal bureau of chemistry with full powers. Public sentiment compelled the president to put him back despite the recommendation of Wickersham for "condign punishment" for an offense that, compared with many laid at Wickersham's door, was an indeterminate quantity.

THE CONTRAST
Love wings above the world his way—
A tender, laughing, radiant thing;
And eager hands and welcoming
Are stretched to meet him day by day,
And this is ecstasy.

Love wings above the world his way
And some must walk with downcast
And clenching hands; for when love
Dies
Not even thought can safely stay,
And this is agony.

Craig Biddle, at a dinner in Newport, defended cosmetics and attacked scandal-mongering in one neat epigram.

An elderly matron was criticizing certain young girls for using rouge and powder in what she deemed an immodest manner.

"But," said Mr. Biddle, "those girls were educated in France, and over there, as you know, cosmetics are looked on as necessary—the same as we look on bread and meat."

"Nevertheless," said the matron, "I have my suspicions about girls who paint like that."

"Well, as for me," the young man retorted, "I think it is far better for a lady to rot her own cheeks than to blacken other ladies' characters."

Interesting light has been thrown incidentally upon the Bible by certain pupils in the Liverpool elementary schools, says a correspondent of the Daily News, who have been employed in producing essays on the history of the British Bible and its influence on the national life. The Bible, which is called the "Brooches Bible," it is interesting to learn, earned its peculiar name in the following way:

"There was a Bible which Contained free leaves sewn together in one bunch, and was called 'The Brooch.' Shortly afterwards it was called the 'Brooches Bible.'"

A train traveling through the west was held up by masked bandits. Two friends, who were on their way to California, were among the passengers.

"Here's where we lose all our money," one said, as the robber entered the car.

"You don't think they'll take everything, do you?" the other asked nervously.

"Certainly," the first replied. "These fellows never miss anything."

"That will be terrible," the second friend said. "Are you quite sure they won't leave us any money?" he persisted.

"Of course," was the reply. "Why do you ask?"

The other was silent for a minute. Then, taking a fifty-dollar note from his pocket, he handed it to his friend.

"What is this for?" the first asked, taking the money.

"That's the fifty dollars I owe you," the other answered. "Now, we're square."

While waiting in the square for a car the other night I was approached by a stranger. Of some 45 years, robust physique, shrewd countenance and unkempt appearance, he looked to be an individual who in his time had passed through many vicissitudes and had at last arrived at that philosophical condition of mind in which such a one is content to exist from day to day as haphazard circumstances, not himself, shall will it.

After asking for the whereabouts to secure a night's lodging—for this was the purpose of his unconventional interview—he related some interesting incidents and turns of his career on the road. This was his mode of life, one which he had followed from the time when, after long and profound meditation, he had concluded that the trade which he followed was for him of too arduous a nature—that of a printer.

One of the incidents may be worth repeating.

"It occurred," said he, "on a sizzling July afternoon. The sun, which radiated a heat comparable with no fires of this earth, blazed fiercely upon my head as I dragged my legs along the dusty, desolate road. My feet seemed to be encased, not in number ten brogans, but in some devilishly contrived receptacles ingeniously formed, so it appeared, for the sole purpose of inflicting discomfort upon the unfortunate wearer. Silence rested upon the lonesome, farmland countryside; that is, upon that portion over which I had just traveled. Not the slightest zephyr cooled my burning face; upon which the admixture of dust and sweat had formed an outer covering that irritated the skin in a most uncomfortable manner."

As I trudged along my troubles were aggravated by clouds of thick, hot, choking dust that trailed in the wake of passing automobiles. The occupants of these vehicles I could see (after rubbing and digging the dust from my eyes) looting on their soft seats, could picture in my mind ever so vividly the refreshing currents of cool, refreshing, wholesome air that caressed these beings of ease who needed it not; could imagine the possible comments of a jocular description passed among them on witnessing my dusty but, I may add, not unpicturesque appearance.

"And I trod alone," I remembered that afternoon was Old Sol. At last I could discern in the distance a house and a group of low sheds that appeared to be the dwelling places of pigs. My spirits rose and I pressed joyfully forward. Soon the haven was at hand. Entering the farmyard and singling out the lookout for its usual guardian—a creature against whom I hold the bitterest antipathy—I rapped on the door. This was opened by a stern visaged, hump-backed looking woman, who, in a none too agreeable tone, asked sharply what was wanted.

"Water, to the quantity of a jugful, madam," I answered.

"Water can't be had here by you,"

this village returned. Our well is dry and we need what little water we have for ourselves and the pigs. But if you walk along a piece to the next house you can get plenty."

"How far is the 'piece'?" I inquired.

"Oh, I calculate about some seven miles!"

"And I started alone."

WHEN THE WINDS ARE RAGING.
When winds are raging o'er the upper ocean,
And billows wild contend with angry year,
'Twas said, far down beneath the wild commotion,
That peaceful stillness reigneth, evermore.

Far, far beneath the noise of tempest blith,
And silver waves chime ever peacefully,
And no rude storm, how fierce so'er he blith,
Disturbs the Sabbath of that deeper sea.

So to the heart that knows Thy love, O Forest,
There is a temple, sacred evermore,
And all the bubble of life's angry voices
Dies in hushed stillness at its peaceful door.

Far, far away the roar of passion blith,
And loving thoughts rise calm and peacefully,
And no rude storm, how fierce so'er he blith,
Disturbs the soul that dwells, O Lord, in Thee.

O rest of rests! O peace serene, eternal,
Thou over livest and thou changest never,
And in the secret of Thy presence dwelleth
Fullness of joy—forever and forever.

—Harriet Beecher Stowe.

EDITORIAL COMMENT
Springfield Republican: The development of electrical transmission has given an undreamed of potential value to remote outcrops and precipitous reaches where water can be stored and utilized at high pressure. Economists are rightly regarding the prompt use of every available source of inexhaustible energy, in order to lessen the enormous waste of the world's limited coal supply. We have been living, for the century past, in a bonanza age, the age of machinery and cheap carbon; the longer it can be stretched out, the better for the prosperity of the world.

Moreover, the artificial storage of rainfall upon great watersheds is being plausibly advocated as a substitute for, or auxiliary to, our vanishing forests for the prevention of all sorts of disastrous freshets and of recurrent periods of drought. Cities, too, reach out into remote mountains for their water supply. Big dams are the order of the day, from Gatun to Assuan, and this tendency will accelerate as coal grows dearer and as the exploitation of power on a large scale becomes systematized. It is only a matter of time when every suitable water-course, great or small, will have its point-up reservoir, source of light, heat, wealth, prosperity and happiness, or of ruin and death as ghastly as ever spouted from the red mouth of a volcano. Which is it to be? Headlessness of fire and flood is the besetting sin of America. No occasion should be lost to drive home the lesson. Waterpower is to be developed, and developed on an enormous scale, but it must be under a rigorous supervision and censorship such as never has been known in the age of modest isolated enterprises out of which we are emerging. And it must be made a rule with no exceptions that no convenience or profit to private investor or to corporations or municipalities can be an excuse for maintaining a dam which is under reasonable suspicion.

CONAN DOYLE A HOME RULER
Boston Herald: The conversion of Sir Arthur Conan Doyle to Irish home rule is a significant of the spread among a large group of British imperialists the opinion that the over sea dominions, and having seen the plan work satisfactorily, cannot consistently withhold like concessions from Ireland.

Of Irish descent, born in Scotland and educated at the famous College of Stonyhurst in England, Sir Arthur Conan Doyle is a representative citizen of the empire. His enthusiasm and admiration for things British are expressed in his novels, and his work on the "Red Cross" for which he was knighted, set the seal on his imperialism. Now he comes forward, after having twice tried to enter parliament in the unionist interest, as an avowed home ruler. He believes that there is better feeling among representative nationalists (the admits of course the existence of those fanatics who have stood in the way of their own desires for so many years); local institutions have been tested with success in both Protestant and Catholic Ireland, and the land question is settled. He thinks a solid, loyal Ireland is the one thing the empire needs to make it impregnable.

TAFT AND THE TRUSTS
Johnstown Democrat: Apparently Mr. Taft has not reassured the trusts by his cheerful assumption at Detroit that the Sherman act is "now clear" and that business may proceed under it with a full knowledge of what is lawful and what unlawful. They seem to feel that everything is up in the air and that all may depend on the stroke of a pen or the word of an elderly gentleman at Washington. And the ex-Attorney General Olney gives. He holds that there is no longer any definite rule of conduct for business and that it must take its chances with the courts. If it can persuade the judges that it is "good" or that it is "reasonable" restraint of trade, it is all right; otherwise it is all wrong and must take the consequences. But the insoluble factor in the problem is the judicial state of mind.

TAFT'S TARIFF BOARD
Buffalo Times: In proving itself a costly institution, President Taft's tariff board is a tasty rival of ex-Senator Aldrich's monetary commission. Complaint is now made that the board is nearly out of funds and it is said that it will confine itself to investigating the wool and cotton schedules unless more money is forthcoming. In all about $250,000 has been allowed the tariff board for expenses. That is certainly a substantial sum. It would be only fair for the board to give an accounting of how this money has been spent before asking for any more.

The motives for all this hue and cry about crippling the tariff board by the lack of funds are pretty obvious. It is an attempt to put the faults and failings of the board, and the surrender of Mr. Taft to the tariff writers, up to congress. "Give us money to investigate, and we will see what there is to the tariff question," is the purport of this plea. It is talking on credulous ears, for it amounts to the proposal that congress must either shoulder the expense of a body wholly extraneous to it, or it must own itself to blame. Congress is not obliged to do either. Tariff responsibility, whether for real or we cannot be shifted from the president and the national legislature, to this board, to which Mr. Taft is so willing under the pretext of honoring it to delegate the odium of his tariff vetoes.

THE IRISH PLAYERS

"Eloquent Dempsey" ONE OF THEIR HITS IN BOSTON

There is a good deal of interest in the Irish players now at the Plymouth theatre, Boston, presenting modern Irish plays, and it is not surprising in a realistic manner, showing scenes one performance we can speak of the plays we saw namely Synge's "Riders to the Sea" and "Eloquent Dempsey," the latter a gem in its way and admirably acted in every particular.

The latter shows the unpleasant predicament a politician gets into when he tries to stand by the people and at the same time to sympathize with their oppressors. There are men who can play such a role in real life but they are generally found out. So it was with Dempsey, who could barter the multi-million dollar prize money when an address of that kind was called for, but who could as readily eulogize the government officials and betray the people if he thought that would serve his purpose. The manner in which the plot is developed is highly interesting and vivid. First when they present him at address of congratulation on his recovery from a feigned illness and next when they found him unfaithful and wanted to tear him to pieces, were highly artistic. The play recalls "The Man of the Hour" and "The Millionaire" in which political scheming portrayed.

The part of Dempsey was assumed by Arthur Scholard and was certainly well interpreted in every feature.

Miss Sara Algood played the part of the faithful, patient, sensible and devoted wife, with delicious grace and simplicity, and she will no longer be to the highest demands of the character. She is undoubtedly an actress of rare ability.

In the "Riders to the Sea" by Synge occurs the only false sentiment in the entire performance and this was not very noticeable. It is when the son, Bartley, the last of her boys, brought in dead and laid on a table, she looks the body over and instead of being overcome in an outburst of grief she reflects grimly now that her husband Michael, her son Bartley, Shaun and the others are gone, she will no longer have to watch for their coming through the long night when the storm rages on the deep; no, she can rest now for the last has gone. No true mother would thus felicitate herself upon being bereft of her husband and sons, no matter how much anxiety they caused her.

The Irish players if they want to succeed must guard against any play that has a false sentiment of this kind or something worse. Some of Synge's plays, we understand, are quite objectionable in this respect but the company has a sufficiently large repertoire without them.

The company has thus far had a successful run in Boston and those who have visited the Plymouth found it a very pretty and cozy little playhouse.

BODY FOUND IN CANAL A POTASH EXPLOSION

Michael Duffy Thought to Have Cigar Caused Wreck in Broad Exchange Building in Boston

A gruesome discovery was made late yesterday afternoon, when the body of Michael Duffy was found in the old Middlesex canal in the rear of the Talbot Dyewood Chemical Co.'s plant in Hiliaria.

Mr. Duffy was employed as day watchman in the chemical works, and since the plant discontinued the manufacture of its goods some time ago, when it was decided to shut the place down, he has been the only one there during the day. At noon yesterday he was as well as ever, apparently, and one of his sons carried his dinner to him. He told the boy to come down and see him after school was let out, a little after 3 o'clock.

Later in the afternoon, Daniel Quinn, of the Lowell office of the company, visited the place on business, and seeing Duffy about, searched through the buildings and was unable to find him. Mr. Quinn then notified the night watchman, Patrick Higgins, who lives nearby, and the two returned to the premises. After searching till 5 o'clock, they found the unfortunate man lying face downward in about two feet of water on the edge of the canal at the rear of the yard. Chief of Police Martin Conway was at once notified and he in turn telephoned to the medical examiner's office in Lowell.

It is not thought that Duffy committed suicide, but it is the general belief that he met with an accident. In the rear of the chemical factory is a high fence, and it is known that Duffy had been in the habit of going outside this fence when he wished to smoke. On the outside there is a steep embankment, at the foot of which is the old canal. It is possible that the man may have fallen from the fence and being rendered unconscious, rolled into the water.

The body was taken in charge by Undertaker O'Donnell.

The deceased was 42 years of age and he leaves a wife and five children.

BOSTON, Oct. 7.—Two men were severely burned in a small room of the Broad Exchange building, 88 Broad street, yesterday afternoon, as the result of an explosion which filled the adjacent portion of the building with smoke, and the loud report of which caused many of the nearly 700 occupants of the 11-story office structure to flee, terrified, for the elevators.

George W. Sarana, aged 32, married, of 8 Alexander street, Roxbury, lies at Grace hospital, his face and hands covered with third degree burns and his hair singed.

Chief Sharpneck, aged 50, father-in-law of Sarana, living in Winthrop, was sent home from Grace hospital after his hands had been dressed for first degree burns.

Room 230, on the third floor of the building was wrecked and its contents damaged to an extent estimated at from $300 to $500.

The room, which is about 7 by 15 feet, has been occupied about two years by the Anti-Friction Roller Bearing Co., of which Sharpneck is proprietor.

The two men were in the room together at 4:15 p. m., when the explosion occurred, performing an experiment in which chlorate of potash figured, and it is claimed a spark from a cigar one of the two men was smoking caused the explosion.

One of the two men was seen to be smoking on passing into the room just before the explosion, and is said to have reluctantly admitted to Chief Grady that smoking caused the damage.

The partition of the room was blown part way over, the walls and ceiling were scorched by the blast which followed, a large window pane was blown out and the glass blown from the door leading to the hall from the next room. While actual damage to the room was not great, injury to plans Sharpneck had in the room may bring the amount up.

O. M. Mead, superintendent of the building, telephoned to the Board of Trade building nearby on Broad street, and an alarm given from there brought Protective company No. 1, Ladder 3 and Engine 25. The blaze was quickly squelched by the firemen with a hand extinguisher from their apparatus.

The two injured men, who remained conscious, were removed in an ambulance from Station 2 to the Grace hospital, operated by Tufts college, on Kingston street.

Superintendent Wade said: "The loud explosion sounded like a falling elevator and frightening many of the occupants of the building, caused them to rush into the halls and to the elevators to see what was the matter. Quiet was soon restored and none was injured in the rush. Acid from the chemical compounds caused the atmosphere near where the explosion occurred to be filled with a thick, pungent smoke, but quick opening of windows prevented any danger to the two men from asphyxiation."

It was said at the hospital last night that Sarana's burns, while severe, are not dangerous unless complications develop.

HATHAWAY THEATRE

But two more performances of "A Gentleman from Mississippi" will be presented at the Hathaway and the large audiences that have attended during the week have been most favorable and enthusiastic in their criticisms. The first melodrama of the season will be given its initial performance when Jack Chagson, the popular leading man will make his first appearance with the Donald Meek stock company in the powerful drama, "Texas," a play full of human interest presenting several attractive and interesting characters. "Texas" is not without its share of good comedy and Mr. Meek will be seen in a most congenial role as the clever little ingenue, Miss Euphonia. Miss Marie Horton will appear in a strongly emotional part in which she of dramatic art she is at her best. Mr. Stevens will assume the heavy role, returning to his original line after a most successful presentation of the senator in "A Gentleman from Mississippi."

"Texas" is a play requiring a great amount of stage talent and which has been carefully and personally looked after by Mr. Meek whose artistic care in staging a production is well known to the patrons of the Hathaway Theatre. This play requires a large and strong cast so that each member will be seen in important roles and to good advantage. Special scenery has been prepared and an elaborate and costly production. Seats for next week's performances are now on sale and may be ordered in advance by telephone. The public is reminded that Thursday, October 12 being a holiday the advance demand for seats for the performances of that day is already great and those who would attend the holiday performances should order their seats without delay. The box office is open daily from 10 a. m. to 9 p. m. Telephone 511.

THEATRE VOYONS

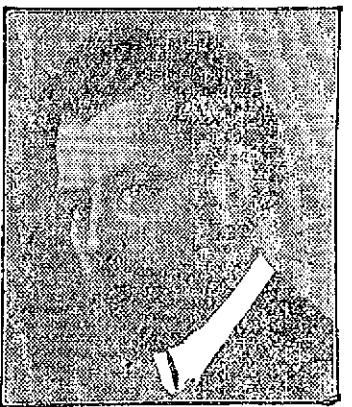

The motion pictures of the great food at Austin, Pa. now being shown at the Theatre Voyons are easily the most interesting news pictures released for some time. These pictures taken but a few hours after the bursting of the dam show the broken dam, the ruined town clearly depicting the path which the flood cut through the valley, the work of searching the ruins for the bodies of the victims and the two heroines of the occasion, telephone operators, who stuck to their posts and saved many lives by their courage.

On Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday the Theatre Voyons will show for the first time in Lowell the magnificent Selig three reel production "The Two Orphans." This photo play in its dramatic form has pleased millions of people and it ranks as one of the standard dramas that will never grow old. It was the play in which Kate Claxton first gained fame and which brought her managers thousands of dollars. It has been played in every village in this country and has never yet failed to interest and entertain those who have witnessed it. In motion picture form produced as it is in three reels it takes nearly an hour and a half to present and it covers every bit of the famous play. It was made by Selig in Chicago and was staged under the direct personal supervision of Kate Claxton and consumed several months in the making. The acting is the equal of any that has ever been seen on the legitimate stage and it calls for much exceptional work on the part of the company. The scenery, the work of searching the ruins for the bodies of the victims and the costumes are a big factor in the play and these are complete and correct to the minutest detail.

The story of the two sisters who came to Paris to seek their fortunes is a most appealing one and the interest never flags from the start to the finish and presented as it is in this photo play it must appeal most strongly to the lovers of both the silent and spoken drama. The presentation will be accompanied by a most suitable musical program quite in keeping with the picture and which will add greatly to its charm. No one who has ever seen this wonderful play or who is at all interested in the best that the dramatic art offers should miss seeing this picture for it is a masterpiece not only of motion pictures but of dramatic acting as well. The Two Orphans will be given afternoon and evening Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday at the Theatre Voyons.

LOWELL OPERA HOUSE

When the task of selecting an effect man arose in the proper performance of Dante's "Inferno" the management spared no expense to secure the services of one whose knowledge of the illusions produced by sound was artistic as well as realistic. After several weeks of negotiations the services of Thomas Duffy were secured. Mr. Duffy has been termed the "David Belasco" of stage effects and created all of the weird sounds used at the New York Hippodrome ever since the opening of that mammoth playhouse.

Mr. Duffy is very enthusiastic over his work and says that although the Hippodrome reached to his mind the limit in effect, Dante's "Inferno" taxes his ability about 20 per cent. more.

With the assistance of Mr. Phil Dillon and four other men he creates all the din of the infernal regions.

Dante's "Inferno" concludes its engagement here with today's performances.

"OVER NIGHT."

From a mechanical engineer to a successful playwright who has his first play accepted by a New York manager and produced on Broadway is the experience of Philip N. Bartholomew. The young author of "Over Night" presented but it was an instant success, and it ran for nine months at the Hackett theatre and the New Playhouse, New York. Its success and popularity in Boston is so well known as to need only a passing comment.

Young Bartholomew was just fresh from school, a graduate of the Roxbury Polytechnic Institute at Troy where he started in with the American Bridge Co. Meanwhile an unexpected deliverance waited him for while gathering intimate knowledge of girders, beams, spans, abutments, and other technical elements of bridge construction, he was burning midnight oil on an entirely different matter. His natural found intellect rebelled at the solemn details of blueprints and contract estimation and took very naturally to playwriting.

After leaving the Polytechnic Institute, however, he spent a year at Heidelberg university where he perfected himself in literature and philosophy.

Returning to this country and to Chicago he began his engineering work. But soon tiring of that he became half owner of a stock company in Washington, in which Charlotte Walker starred.

"Over Night" his first piece, went the usual round of the papers, several of whom read it and commented on it. Among those who had a "but" for their criticism were Daniel Frohman, Coleman Harris and Ralph Herz. It remained for Manager William A. Brady to make a proposition which was so eminently fair and direct that Mr. Bartholomew at once accepted. The two men quickly came to an agreement as to terms and the result was the successful launching of "Over Night."

A new version of the four-act drama by Lem B. Parker, "A Girl of the Mountains," will be seen at the Opera House on Thursday, Oct. 12, matinee and night. "This is not a western play, but a society drama, telling a strong and interesting story of a girl's love and betrayal, her sacrifices and finally her success and happiness. The story is simple and straightforward, with strong situations. In addition to this, Mr. O. F. W. has always taken care to give the production the necessary environment of scenery and costumes. Prices for the engagement are 10, 20, 30 and 50 cents.

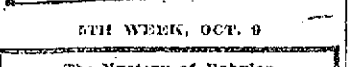

"NAUGHTY MARIETTA." Miss Florence Weber will be heard in the soprano role of "Naughty Marietta." Mr. John Cardo in the tenor role of "Captain Dick." Mr. Garrick Major in the baritone role of the villain, "Rienne Grandet." Miss Cara Saphin, in the contralto role of the slave "Adah." and Sid Abraham as the adventurer, Simon O'Hara. Others in the cast are Miss Cleo Gasconne, Mr. Warren B. Lombard, George B. Scott, etc.

The music is by Victor Herbert and is said to be some of the best music he has composed. The book is the work of Rida Johnson Young, and the story is both romantic and humorous.

"Naughty Marietta" comes to the Opera House Saturday, Oct. 14.

MEETING OF Y. M. C. A. TEXTILE SCHOOL

Ex-Mayor Fosdick Addressed the Gathering Last Night

Hon. Frederick Fosdick, former mayor of Pittsburg, addressed a big gathering of men at the Y. M. C. A. last night. He fired the opening gun, so to speak, of the 10-day campaign instituted for the purpose of boosting the membership to the 1000 mark. Mr. Fosdick's address was full of vim and energy. He said that the work of the Y. M. C. A. is not to give good times alone, or to develop muscle alone, but to develop the man that is hidden away.

FRANK A. BOWEN, President Y. M. C. A.

In the percentage of members to population, with about 5% to the 1000, Pittsburg, with a population of 32,000, has a Y. M. C. A. membership of 1600. Chelsea, with a population of 35,000, has 1354 members. Salem, with 43,000 population, has 911 members, and so on down the list to Lowell, with 106,000 population and only 750 members, and nearly 100 of those expiring at the present time.

"There is a great opportunity here, my friends, an opportunity of a life-time. You have lots of young men in your city who are not members of the association to whom you would be doing a favor in getting them interested in the work. The 1000 mark is too low, make it 1500 or 2000. I, as your president, stated, bring the greetings of the state board, which watches and helps all the local associations. The Y. M. C. A. has had a marvelous growth in the last 10 years, a growth that brings encouragement to the workers and portends a great future.

"The work has progressed in the face of many difficulties, but has triumphed and has bound itself to the work of the church. The financial growth is equally great, and in the building movement in the various cities the associations have raised over $1,000,000, of which sum Lowell has raised over one-tenth.

"Now to make the membership campaign a like success. It is an old saying that 'Nothing succeeds like success,' and I am so confident that you will succeed that I repeat that I am surprised that you have not set the mark higher. You will have to show that you mean business, however.

"I went to a man in Pittsburg a while ago for subscription to the Y. M. C. A. and he answered me that the association should be self-supporting, that it was a club and that the membership fee should be high enough to pay the costs. I asked him if his son went to college. He said 'Yes, Harvard.' Then I asked him if he paid the bills and he most indignantly said 'Yes.' You did not, I answered, not one-tenth of them. The public benefits that have been made to the college paid most of them. The man in question saw the matter in a different light then. The colleges are supported by the bequests, and if the tuition fee of the students were the only means of support, they would be so high that few, very few, could afford to finish their education.

"The colleges are doing a great work and the education received there pays, without any doubt, by the same sign the dues of the Y. M. C. A. in proportion to the opportunities and benefits, would be so high that no one could afford membership, and the Y. M. C. A. is a benefit to community, state, and nation. When you show the public that you are doing your level best, and find the young men barely able to support themselves, you will find the public interested.

"See what you can do for the Master. Your president has truly said that it is not what we can receive, but what we can do. I have been a member of the association for 26 years and I have not received any direct benefit. I do not use the gymnasium apparatus, but I am satisfied to give to the other fellow. Nobody likes to buy a dead horse, so you must make the association a growing thing, get all the members possible and you are doing your part.

"The work of the Y. M. C. A. is not to give good times alone, or to develop muscle alone, but to develop the man that is hidden away. Man is what Christ gave his life for and we must have men. The effort for membership is to bring men into the Y. M. C. A. It has been found that the body and mental faculties are so closely connected that a good body helps toward the good brain, and therefore the gymnasium is a character builder. Through it the young men gain strength to fight temptation. Bring your young men under the strength of body, mind and soul in the Young Men's Christian association—don't forget the Christian association.

"You can see your opportunity, even if you only secure one new member. I remember a young man who came to me from a country town, who had been brought up in a strictly religious manner. We were advised of his coming, and a member met him at the station. He came to the rooms of the association and less than a year later was a church member. Later, that young man told me that he had intended to go to sea and to wine and women and then to return to the path of rectitude. Do you think for a moment that after that year of sin he would ever have returned? It is too easy to continue, and too hard to climb back for that.

"Now, what are you going to do? Are you going to get out and hustle and approach the first man you meet tomorrow, that shows the slightest sign that he might join the association? Or are you going to let your brother do all the work? Don't sit and pray for the Lord to send a man around to you. Be like the darkey down south with a peach for a turkey in the next yard. This darkey prayed and prayed that the Lord might send that turkey over to him, and the turkey remained over there in the next yard. Then the darkey prayed to the Lord to send him that turkey, and it was only a few hours before that turkey was roasting in his oven. Pray to the Lord to send you a possible member, and don't wait to have him come to you. Pray tonight for a blessing and go out tomorrow to success. May God be with you and aid you."

"The Lowell campaign is a part of the big campaign that is on to secure a million members of the Y. M. C. A. in this country. Lynn, Pittsburg and other Massachusetts associations have made the 'sway to the Plan' in a membership campaign and the Lowell men allow that they can make a success of it.

"The large clock that was set up on the Russell building two years ago in the campaign for the $150,000 for the new building in Hurd street and the hands will indicate the progress that is being made along the membership line. The plans for the present campaign will be practically the same as those used in the building fund campaign. The next meeting will be held Monday night when the first reports will be called for.

Course of Lectures
The Y. M. C. A., during the fall and winter, will present a course of educational lectures on topics of vital and general interest. The lectures will be given at the rooms of the association, and it is hoped that the course will be well attended by the men and women of the city, as well as the members of the association. It will be a course of twelve health talks. The lectures will be held Wednesday evenings. The dates, subjects and speakers will be as follows:

FACTORY IS BURNED

Fire Caused a Loss of $40,000

EASTPORT, Me., Oct. 7.—Forty thousand dollars' loss resulted from a fire which destroyed the plant of the Eastport Sausage and Candy Co. The building and fixtures were valued at $36,000 and there was $10,000 worth of canned sardines ready for shipment stored in the building. Nearly 100 barrels are thrown out of employment by the burning of the factory. The fire is thought to have started around the smokers.

HARVARD-HOLY CROSS

Worcester Boys Expect to Put Up Fast Game Today

CAMBRIDGE, Oct. 7.—From a 26 to 0 defeat at Yale last Saturday, Holy Cross in a somewhat weakened condition came down to the Stadium today to test the football calibre of Harvard. There was considerable regret over the absence of several of the strongest of the Holy Cross men, including Capt. Joy and McCabe.

Coch Houghton of Harvard was expected to continue his policy of playing a substitute eleven in alternate periods with the first string of players starting the game. A heavy northeast rainstorm swept into the Stadium early in the day, making footing uncertain and good playing difficult.

WESLEYAN VS. AMHERST

AMHERST, Oct. 7.—Wesleyan came up the Connecticut river today to receive a 3 to 0 defeat which Amherst scored against them last year by a goal from the field in the last few minutes of play. The teams were regarded as more evenly matched than a year ago, as Wesleyan lost less men through graduation than has the purple and white.

DARTMOUTH AGAINST COLBY

HANOVER, N. H., Oct. 7.—The fourth football game of the season brought Colby against Dartmouth today under weather conditions which gave no one the faintest idea of what made other games except football almost impossible.

The Pine Tree visitors had an 18 to 0 defeat last year to wipe out or reduce and came here fairly confident of making a better showing than a year ago. The team sent a somewhat crippled eleven into the game. Lowell-Gibson and Loden being among the side-line spectators. The lineup:

YALE MEETS SYRACUSE

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 7.—With Syracuse as her opponent Yale expects a real try-out on a rain-soaked field this afternoon. No fear is felt that the visitors will score but there is anticipation of some fouls which may be worked as surprises. Syracuse has been highly held until yesterday when the Yale coaches ordered secret practice in order to try some new ideas which may be shown today in event of conditions not warranting a rushing game. As the practice has been still quiet work some of the first string men will give way to substitutes unless their services are actually needed. Captain Howe will be replaced at quarterback by Merritt, the baseball captain.

LOWELL HOSPITAL

Must Pay Taxes, Says City Solicitor

City Solicitor Duncan went to Boston, Thursday, to confer with the tax commissioners relative to the probability of the Lowell hospital being exempt from taxation. Frank E. Duncan participated in the conference in the interest of the hospital. Up to this time the Lowell hospital has been exempt from taxation, but it is claimed, not legally so. The Lowell hospital is not a corporation and the city solicitor contends that because of that fact it is not entitled to exemption from taxes and the tax commissioners agreed with the city solicitor. In order to be exempt from taxation the hospital will have to be incorporated.

NON-UNION MAN BEATEN

CHICAGO, Oct. 7.—Edward Bloom, 40 years old, a non-union machinist, employed in the Illinois Central railroad shops at Burnside, was beaten into insensibility by two unidentified assailants shortly after he left his home today. The police believe that the assault is a result of the strike, as Bloom's assailants made no attempt to rob him.

C. Y. M. L. IS ACTIVE

Fine Program Arranged for Fall and Winter Season

The members of the C. Y. M. L. are very active these days in preparing their fall entertainments and according to plans the members of this popular organization as well as their friends will have the pleasure of attending many interesting events during the fall weather.

The first of the planned program is a Ladies' night to be held at the rooms of the Yecum in Suffolk street on

F. Maloney, former supervisor of the Greenhalgo playgrounds has been secured as physical instructor in the gymnasium, and this alone will be a great drawing card.

The gymnasium classes will start in the week of Oct. 15, and good work is expected to be done in the course of the winter. A bowling league composed of eight teams has been organized and beginning Monday evening the teams will compete on the Moody bridge alleys probably twice a week. Albert Lavo is chairman of the games committee and he is doing his very best to interest the members in general in all sorts of amusements and he is soon to organize pool and cards tournaments to be held later on in the season.

The basketball team is now in readiness for a game and challenges any team in the city or elsewhere, whether they be professionals or not and its book is open for dates.

SOCIAL AND FRATERNAL

Wamont lodge, 25, K. O. P., held a very largely attended meeting at their rooms last evening, and important business was transacted.

Two more applications for membership were received and one application was voted on and accepted, which makes a total at present of 12 candidates, who are ready to receive the rank of page which will be conferred on them by Deputy MacArthur's rank staff of Cambridge on Nov. 31. Several committees were reported and the rank staff was reported as making good progress. Several members of Wamont lodge expect to journey to Lawrence next Thursday evening.

The Red Men

Passaconaway tribe of Red Men held one of their most interesting meetings at Odd Fellows temple last evening. Many of the old-time members of the tribe were present, and listened with attention to the proceedings of the great campfire.

One application was received and referred to a committee. A circular was received from the great sachem, John W. Converse, giving a list of amendments to be voted upon at the coming great council session at Holyoke, Oct. 26, also giving an account of the entertainments planned for the delegates. The tribe was greatly pleased to see the sachem on the stump again, as he has been unable to follow the hunt for the past two moons, and he received a most cordial greeting. C. of R. Arthur of his trip through the Adirondacks and places of interest in Canada. His remarks were well received.

At the next meeting the degree staff will perform the ceremony of adoption on two paleontes. A number of chiefs from other hunting grounds will be present to witness the work.

Remarks on the welfare of the order were given by Brothers G. B. Dells of Pomposett tribe, 64, of Hudson; C. E. Wolf of Cherokee tribe, 16, of Worcester; R. Kent of Polk tribe, 8, of Bangor, Me., and Past Great Sachem O. A. Libby of this tribe. On trial affairs, remarks were made by Brothers George Houle and George B. Sutherland.

NOT A CURE-ALL But a Double Remedy

Toiletine is NOT good for everything that ails you. But, because of its unusual medicinal properties it is doubly efficient. This efficiency has been proved by over twenty years' continuous use in thousands of homes.

Taken internally, it gives quick and lasting relief for colds, coughs, croup, and all throat troubles. For external use it is equally as effective. It takes out the ache and pain, and quickly heals cuts, burns, bumps, bruises and skin troubles of every kind.

What Toiletine has done in thousands of other homes it will just as certainly do in yours. It is positively guaranteed to do all claimed for it or money back.

COMPLEXIONS FLAKED OFF AT HOME

(From Pilgrim Magazine.)

The girl with the poor complexion complains, "I have to touch up my cheeks. I am fallow and a sight, and only my makeup saves me."

Now, as a matter of fact, more women spoil their good looks than improve them with cosmetics. The proof is certainly unnecessary, now that the virtues of ordinary mercurized wax as a beautifier have become known. It has been found that the mercurized wax has wonderful absorbent powers. It causes the faded or discolored skin to flake off in minutes, almost imperceptible particles, so gently, gradually, as to cause no inconvenience at all. To this way the old complexion is actually removed, likewise all fine lines, pimples, blotches, moth patches and other surface defects. A new complexion appears—a clear, smooth, youthful, healthy-lined skin such as no paint, powder or lotion can produce. Mercurized wax, to be had at any drug store, is applied like cold cream.

A LITTLE NONSENSE

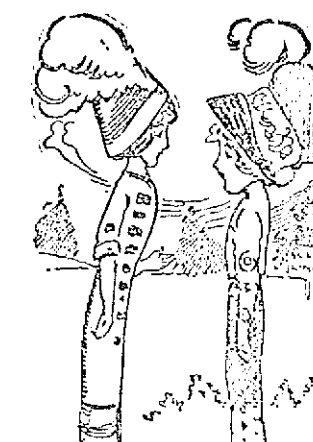

SIGN OF PROGRESS.

"Do you think people are really making any progress? That we actually gain in knowledge and worthiness?"
"Certainly. Why, hardly any woman bleaches her hair now."

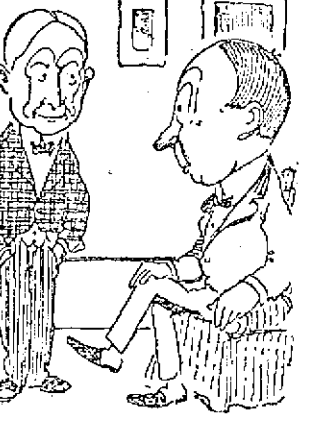

THE WAY IT SEEMED.

"How long have you been married?"
"Since before time began."

ON THE VERANDA.

"Sausages are so delicious. Have you ever tried that kind?"
"Only once; my husband is such a good head he won't eat any kind but the links."

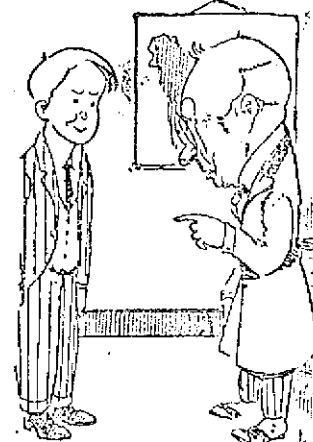

FOR BUSINESS REASONS.

"I see your friend, Mr. Waters, has petitioned the Legislature to change his name."
"Yes; he expects to go into the milk business."

AN OPINION.

Playwright-Starr's manager has promised to give a presentation of that comedy of mine, but I don't know when it's to come off.
Critics—Probably the night after it's put on.

AT THE LECTURE.

Freshman—Sir, mark my words. Professor—I have marked your words and find that you have misquoted 99 per cent. of them. You must improve a great deal. Mark my words.

The announcement that Alfred Tenneyson Dickens will come to Lowell on Monday to lecture has aroused a great deal of interest here. Alfred Tenneyson Dickens will lecture before the Middlesex Women's club.

WHEN NEIGHBORS MEET

The Whist Club met Friday night at Mrs. Asa Spade's house. She has a beautiful home.
Everything in it harmonizes so well. Where do you play cards?
We played in the living-room. The walls are a soft red; the ceiling, ivory; the trim is light flintish; the tiles green; and red predominates in the large rug which covers the center of the polished floor.

All of the paint used in her house was furnished by C. B. Coburn Co. of Market street. I buy whatever I need in paints and oils at Coburn's, also my floor wax, which is 50c a pound.

Mrs. Matter stated that she could not go out into the street without facing the most awful "tongue lashing" imaginable. Catherine Curley told, with tears in her eyes, how Mrs. Thompson would meet young men who came down the street intending to call on her and Baker, gardener for Mrs. Cornelius Vancut, said he could not come home from work without being told that he was a crook. Every girl that Patrick Curley went with, he testified, Mrs. Thompson stopped on the street and told them he was no fit companion for a girl.

THOMAS H. KELLEY, Auctioneer
Office, Paige Street, Opposite Merrimack Square Theatre

PLEDGED TO ABSOLUTE AUCTION SALE, THE HANDSOME, WELL BUILT AND SUBSTANTIAL TWO AND ONE-HALF STORY HOUSE OF 15 ROOMS AND UNFINISHED ATTIC AT THE CORNER OF WILIE AND FRANKLIN STREETS, LONG OCCUPIED BY THE LATE WILLIAM H. WIGGIN AS AN OFFICE AND RESIDENCE.

It is seldom that a parcel of real estate is offered for sale at public auction of the character of above, which will be sold for the highest dollar at public auction on Saturday, Oct. 14, at 4 P. M.

This house was built by the late Mr. Wiggins for his own occupancy, and it was thoroughly built in every respect. There are 15 rooms in the house, two bedrooms, first floor consisting of parlor, sitting room, kitchen, dining room, two bedrooms, bathroom, pantry and small shed. There are eight sleeping rooms on the second floor, two finished rooms on the third floor, and a large unfinished attic. The front hall is large and roomy, with plenty of space necessary for purchaser desires to turn the property into a two apartment house. There are large bay windows on front and side extending through the two stories. The roof is slated and the entire building is provided with lightning rods. The house was painted on the outside a short time ago, and in good condition in this respect. Blinds are in good condition, and the front part of the house, both up stairs and down is provided with inside shutters. The underpinning is of solid, rpsplit granite, seldom used today in house foundation work because of the great expense. The lot is marked off from the street by granite bounds. There is a good sized side piazza with floor of hard wood.

The entire house is piped for gas, and a nearly new furnace in good condition, and black walnut doors, one in parlor and the other in sitting room, and also a wash stand in addition to large sink, and with the exception of a little paper and paint on the inside, the house is in perfect condition. The present owner says to sell, and sold it will be for the high dollar.

This property is well situated for a boarding or lodging house, or might be turned into a two apartment house, by extending the rear towards Franklin street on Willie street, a four apartment block with but slight additional expense.

Within a stone's throw are situated shoe shops and factories, foundries and other places of employment. It is nearly opposite the plant of the Whitall Mfg. Co., and Foster's shoe shop, where several hundred men and women are employed. There are 4000 square feet of land more or less, and handsome shade trees line the street. Sixty per cent, or better can be had on mortgage. Purchaser must deposit or secure to the auctioneer $300 as the property is struck off. The property must be seen to be appreciated. Make all inquiries of the auctioneer.

AUCTION SALE OF 40 BEAUTIFUL BUILDING LOTS IN HIGHLANDS, NEAR THE HIGHLAND CLUB HOUSE
Monday, October 9, 1911, at 2 P. M.
Having retired from active business and not wishing to have the care of these lots of land, I have instructed the auctioneer to sell 40 building lots that are located on Harvard, Stevens, Troy, Middlesex streets and Putnam avenue.

These lots are the best located lots that are to be found in the Highlands and would have been sold before, but I held them wishing to get their full value, but now that I have made up my mind to sell, I have instructed the auctioneer to sell them to the highest bidder.

The lots, all but those on Putnam avenue, are on good streets, that are well built up, with every city convenience, and are high and level, which ought to appeal to any person considering buying land to erect a home, either permanent or as an investment. They are just off the car line and still near enough so that it is but a few minutes to the car.

There are three lots on Middlesex street, just above Stevens street, where there are many beautiful residences. The Putnam avenue lots are located on an unaccepted street 40 feet wide that runs from Middlesex street to Troy street, between Stevens and Harvard streets. A plan of the lots may be seen by applying to the auctioneer.

Terms of sale: $25 in cash must be paid as a deposit on each lot as soon as struck off. Other terms at sale.

HUNDREDS HOMELESS

A TERRIBLE FLOOD

Town of Black River Falls, Wis.,
Almost Blotted Out

BLACK RIVER FALLS, Wis., Oct. 7.—This town of 2000 inhabitants has been almost blotted from the map of Wisconsin by the floodwater of Black river. Only a few of the 61 business buildings have escaped the fury of the raging waters, and they seem doomed. What is known as the lower town, that part of the town lying west of the river, today was a place of misery. There most of the residents live. Following a night of anxiety and suffering they face the realization that no food is available. Many homes have been demolished and frequently several families share food which would not be enough for one man. Every grocery store and market is swept away by the deluge. Provisions will come from the outside soon, but transportation is impeded by washouts. Two dozen dwellings have been swept away and unless there is a sudden change in the current many more will disappear into the torrent which still roars in what once was the heart of the city. So far as can be ascertained, there has been no loss of life. Communication with towns down the Black river is impossible but it is believed that some of them have been carried away. Everything on the four business streets comprising the heart of the town has been swept away. The Northwestern railroad bridge over the Black river is still standing but is swaying as though the heavy spans were supported only by cables. Train service is cut off at Black River Falls and no persons are allowed even to cross above. At Hatfield, 10 miles above Black River Falls, the river had today cut a new channel. The main channel has moved over 100 feet toward dry land. The dam pressure has ceased and the waters have fallen. The main part of the dam is still standing. The powerhouse, two miles down from Hatfield, was flooded. It is miles down the river, with a population of 150, is cut off by the flood, but is thought to be safe. The banks of the river at Black River Falls are slowly slipping into the water. Most of the city is built on sand and residence quarters are in danger of destruction. Hundreds of residents of the city, fearing that a general demolition of their property could not be averted, gathered a few belongings and made for Price hill. One after another, in rapid succession, brick, stone and frame buildings were undermined by the water and slowly swept into the river. The postoffice and several banks were among the buildings swept away. All money was saved from the latter institutions and is stored in the courthouse.

He has since made good in the world as is well known in Lowell and undoubtedly will be received with open arms by his friends in "the old town."

FISHING SCHOONERS

Were Abandoned by Their Crews

ST. PIERRE, Aug. 7.—Unable to weather a terrific gale which has raged off this port for several days, the fishing schooners, Xenophon and Adventure were abandoned today. Both vessels, heavily loaded with fish, were ashore at the entrance of this harbor and all efforts to float them were without result. The crews were brought to St. Pierre and will return to France. Damaged considerably by the storm, 25 local fishing vessels arrived here today. A large portion of these schooners lost their anchors during the gale while others were minus some of their rigging. Their catches were generally poor.

DUCHESNE MAY DIE

Man Fell Through a Trap Door
Into Cellar

Francois Xavier Duchesne of 23 Pawtucket street is today confined in the Lowell hospital, suffering from injuries received late yesterday afternoon by falling through a trap door near his cellar, and the attending physicians cannot as yet say whether or not he will recover. The accident occurred at 4:45 o'clock yesterday afternoon in the shop of repairing shop of Adelard Plourde, 252 Aiken street. Duchesne was engaged in a friendly conversation with the owner of the place and was sitting near the trap door leading to the cellar, which was opened. He arose to go out, and not seeing the trap door, he walked into it and landed in the cellar.

The unfortunate man was picked up in an unconscious condition and was carried up stairs. The ambulance was summoned and Duchesne was removed in haste to the Lowell hospital, where he is still in a semi-conscious condition. The attending physicians made a thorough examination of their patient, but when asked today as to the extent of the injuries, they could not say, only that he has internal injuries and that his life is in danger.

COLUMBUS DAY

Plans For the Parade and the
Banquet Announced

A very interesting meeting of the committee in charge of the Columbus day celebration was held last night at the rooms of the local council of the Knights of Columbus and considerable business was transacted. Every member of the committee was present and the different reports thus far given out show good work on the part of those who are at the head of this observance.

Marshall Thomas E. Delaney reported that the militia had decided to take part in the parade and that the Holy Name societies of the different churches had also accepted the invitation to turn out.

The Polish and Greek guards have also signified their intentions to appear in the parade, as well as a large delegation from the Portuguese parish. The parade, according to plans, will be one of the largest and best in appearance in the history of Lowell, providing these plans come to maturity. The military delegation will be quite large, for in addition to the militia companies and the Polish and Greek Guards, the O. M. U. Cadets, the A. G. Cadets, Garde d'Honneur, Garde Francaise and Garde Sacre Occur will participate, as well as the Wolf Tone Guards. The parade will probably be in four divisions, the different marshals and the route to be announced Monday.

A committee consisting of William F. Thornton, William E. Gargan and Henry J. Heaps was appointed to meet the committee appointed for the day by the city government.

The Knights of Columbus and the Holy Name societies will march from the square to St. Peter's church, instead of the Sacred Heart, for services and the civic parade will form on the South common at 10 o'clock.

The preacher at the mass which will be celebrated at 8:45 o'clock will be Rev. James Quinn, O. M. U. of San Antonio, Tex., who is well known in this city as an able and forceful speaker. The plans for the banquet in the evening were discussed and the D. L. Page Catering company was awarded the contract for the dinner, at which it is expected 500 people will sit around the festive board.

The committee will meet again tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock in the council rooms and Tuesday night a special meeting will be held at the same place at which time the new chapter of the local council, Rev. W. George Mullin, curate at St. Peter's church, who was recently appointed to this position by Archbishop O'Connell, will address the members. Rev. F. Mullin is a very interesting speaker and no doubt the members of the order will turn out in large numbers.

A number of the local mills as well as some of the large department stores have decided to close their places of business on this day.

The mills that have already decided to close on Columbus day are the Boot, the Merrimack Mfg. Co. and the Hamilton Mfg. Co., and to this effect the two latter have sent the following letters to Grand Knight Henry J. Heaps: Mr. Henry J. Heaps, Grand Knight, Lowell Council, Knights of Columbus, 120 Hampshire St., Lowell, Mass. Dear Sir—Yours of the 5th inst. is at hand and in reply to same we would state that the mills of this company will be closed Columbus day, Oct. 12, 1911. Yours truly, Arthur R. Sharp, Treasurer, Hamilton Mills.

Boston, Mass., October 5, 1911. Henry J. Heaps, Esq., 120 Hampshire Street, Lowell, Mass. Dear Sir—In reply to your letter of October 5th, I would say that the mills of the Merrimack Manufacturing Company will be closed on Columbus day, October 12th. Yours truly, Herbert Lyman, Treasurer.

The stores which have answered favorably on the closing question are: The Bon Marche, A. G. Pollard Co., Miley Kelman, Gilbride and many others.

On Thursday, October 12, Columbus day, the post office will be closed from 10 o'clock in the morning, and the carriers will make the usual morning delivery.

Columbus Day Observance

Mayor Meehan has signed the $500 order for the observance of Columbus day, and the committee on arrangements for that day, Aldermen Flanagan and Jordan and Councilmen Doherty, Connor and Gargan, will meet Monday night at 9:30 o'clock to complete arrangements for the observance.

EVENING INDUSTRIAL SCHOOL

Registration for the evening industrial school has exceeded the expectations of everybody connected with or interested in the school. The total registration up to date is about 1500, 1200 girls and 300 boys. Because of this unlooked for rush, Principal Doherty says it will be necessary to curtail some of the classes to one evening a week.

Both branches of the evening industrial school, the boys at the Old River and the girls at the Morrill school, will open Monday evening.

THE WORLD SERIES

Great Crowds Expected
at the Games

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—Three hundred skilled baseball writers and artists will be called upon to appraise throughout the country the whetted appetite of thousands for news of the premier event of the national pastime—the world's baseball series—which begins here next Saturday between the Giants and the Athletics.

From all parts of the country baseball experts have applied for seats at the games here and in Philadelphia and the national commission has set aside a section of the grand stand for reporters. No event, probably with the exception of the conventions that nominate the presidential candidates, calls forth more newspapermen than these annual clashes for the world's championship on the diamond.

Scores of telegraph wires will be used to transmit the progress of the contests play by play.

The greatest crowds that ever packed a baseball field are expected to attend the games this year. Just 124,222 persons saw the series last year. The New Brush Stadium at the Polo grounds, fitted to capacity, will hold approximately 50,000 spectators and the grounds of Shibe field can accommodate about 30,000.

To handle the immense crowds special details of police have been ordered. Ambulances will be on hand to take care of any injured persons.

THE CITY CHARTER

DISCUSSED AT QUARTERS OF
CENTRALVILLE SOCIAL CLUB

The campaign by the opponents of the proposed city charter was opened last night at the quarters of the Centralville Social club in Lakeview avenue, where several speakers explained their views in opposition to the charter.

The meeting was called to order at 8 o'clock by Pierre C. Gagnon, who introduced the following speakers: Lawrence Cummings, William E. Sprague, John J. Mahoney and Thomas P. Garvey. The attendance numbered about 100, and they were all attentive listeners, but at the close of the meeting many of them gathered in groups and engaged in the heated discussions took place, the report being that the friends of the charter were there with their arguments.

Inquiries from the secretary of the Centralville Social club revealed the fact that the club rooms were rented for the night to a committee of men opposed to the new charter, and that neither the club nor its officers had anything to do with the said meeting, and therefore the report that the meeting was held under the auspices of the Centralville Social club is untrue.

BIG PARADE IN LYNN

Fr. Mathew Day Observed in Fine Style

LYNN, Oct. 8.—The various societies affiliated with the Essex County Catholic Total Abstinence Union, which has probably the largest membership of any such organization in the archdiocese, held its annual parade today.

The societies attended a high mass of requiem at 9 o'clock, and at 2 o'clock the street parade started over a route including many of the principal streets of the city.

The Lynn societies had the right of line with those coming from Salem, Beverly, Haverhill and many of the larger towns, also some from Boston, following.

At the close of the parade, the St. Mary's, the Sacred Heart, and the Father Mathew societies, all of Lynn served a luncheon to those participating. At city hall, Mayor Connerly, together with members of the city government, and many members of the clergy, reviewed the marchers.

In the evening a ball in the city hall, Lynn, will be the closing feature.

No Parade Here

There will be no parade in Lowell this year in observance of Fr. Mathew day, which comes on October 10th. The Mathews will hold exercises next week though in commemoration of the event. Seven years ago today the Mathews participated in the Essex County parade in Peabody and made a big hit. Dr. Richard J. McCloskey was a division marshal and Rev. W. George Mullin rode at the head of the Mathews. The late Humphrey P. Sullivan was president of the Mathews at the time and George M. Rooney headed the Burkes.

LIGHT ON THE CHARTER

IS 97 YEARS OLD

Mrs. Barnard Recalls Early Days in Interesting Story

Mrs. Lucinda Barnard is one of the oldest women in Lowell. She is nearly her ninety-seventh birthday and is less than a month away. Mrs. Barnard was born in Appleton, N.H., November 4, 1814. She came to Boston when she was 18 years old and spent the greater part of her life there.

Mrs. Barnard is living with her niece, Mrs. Clara Clark, 245 Beacon street, and she expects to spend the rest of her days with her, as she gives her the best of care. Mrs. Barnard is a dear old lady and she seemed quite pleased to meet a reporter for the Sun who called to see her the other day. She was reading when the reporter called and she was wearing glasses, but not on her eyes. The glasses were pushed up on her forehead and she told the reporter that she reads without them.

"I thank God for my eyesight and other senses," said Mrs. Barnard, "and I am quite happy. I have outlived all of my old friends and I might say that it has not been my desire to live so long."

Mrs. Barnard came to Boston in a coaster. There were no trains those days and the most convenient way to travel was in the apocryphal vessels, the little coasters. Mrs. Barnard's husband died in 1833. He was 42 years old when he died and she was then 25. He kept a restaurant in Boston and it was said that his diners were the best in the city at that time. His customers included the wealthiest people in Boston and when Mrs. Barnard, after the death of her husband, had to find a means of earning a livelihood she received ready assistance from the influential people who frequented her husband's restaurant.

She became a nurse and took care of Charles March, of the firm of Jordan-March Co., when he was a baby. She had splendid success as a nurse. She had all that she could do and received good pay. She nursed in the wealthiest families and those of them who in the last of the living are still her friends.

Mrs. Barnard has not been to Boston for six or seven years. She said to the reporter that Boston was a pretty small place when she first went there and she allows that she can appreciate its development better than the average one because she knew it when it was in its infancy. She witnessed the coming and going of the horse car and later the introduction of the electric car, surface and elevated. There were no cars of any description on the streets when she came to Boston and now she says one's life is in danger when one attempts to cross a street. She does not take very kindly to automobiles and says that carriages are good enough for her. She expects to make one more trip to Boston, before she dies.

LOGICAL REASONS

Why Charter Should be Adopted, by William N. Osgood, Esq.

Below is given a very fair and comprehensive interview with William N. Osgood on the provisions of the new charter. Mr. Osgood has made a thorough study of city charters and especially of the Des Moines charter which will be submitted to the voters of Lowell for adoption at the state election. We ask everybody interested in the movement of charter reform to read this interview for the reason that Mr. Osgood is in full sympathy with the people in their efforts to secure better government. He explodes some of the delusions entertained in regard to this charter and advances logical reasons why the new charter should be adopted.

On the matter of giving preference to citizens in city work Mr. Osgood states that it is a matter of public policy that must be observed although it would go further and compel the public service companies using our streets to do the same. Altogether the interview has many fine points that are well worth reading. Asked if he would run for any office under the new charter if adopted, Mr. Osgood replied that he would not attempt to throw away his business for anything so uncertain as a municipal office.

Why should Lowell have a new charter?

For the same reason that any American city under the old form of city government should have one. It is because our city is worse governed than many other cities, but because the old system of municipal government has been pronounced a failure by all thoughtful and disinterested men. The scheme of patterning a city government after national and state governments and having a mayor and two branches of congress, and to a governor and two branches of the legislature are unnecessary and are not required to perform the functions which strictly appertain to the government of a city. In fact, the functions of a city are principally executive; that is, they relate to business, as we commonly understand the word. A city has little legislative work to do. In other words, a city is a business corporation, or, more correctly speaking, it is a public business corporation. It is incorporated by the state and granted a charter, and private business corporation gets its charter from the state.

What is the difference between these two kinds of corporations?

There is a vast difference. The private business corporation is organized to make money and pay it to the shareholders in dividends. The public corporation, the city, is organized not to make money but to receive money from its stockholders, or citizens, and use it or invest it for the benefit of the city. The greatest dividends may be returned to them, but expressed in dollars and cents, but in public welfare and public improvements. Both are alike in this, that the stockholders want the most for their money, except that in the case of the municipal corporation, more sentiment and sympathy are permitted to enter into the management. Of course, I mean sentiment as expressed in art in the construction of public buildings, the laying out of streets, parks, etc., the fair and even liberal treatment of employees, and the caring for the unfortunate and sick. Therefore, you can make a distinction in the kinds of business performed by public and private corporations, and hold that both should be administered in accordance with business principles, having in regard their respective and very different purposes.

How can the new commission form of government better conduct this public business than can the old one?

In the first place a mistake has been made in using the term "commission government." It was used originally in connection with the so-called Cleveland plan which was in fact a commission. Its members were appointed by the governor of the state. The name still clings to the modified plan like the Des Moines and the proposed Lowell charters, although the members are elected by the citizens and feature of direct legislation and control of the government are left in the hands of the voters.

Under the new charter the city's business can be carried on more efficiently than under the old one, because five men can perform the same work promptly and intelligently, and with less waste of energy and money than one mayor, 9 aldermen and 27 councilmen, divided into various and clumsy committees with divided and uncertain authority, not to mention various conflicting heads of departments all assuming a share of the responsibility, and disclaiming it when the reverse.

With the city's business divided into well defined and related departments and assigned to the five members of the city council according to the personal fitness of each, the citizens would at all times have just one man to hold responsible for anything that required attention in any department. This opinion is not based upon theory, but upon the actual experience of cities which are trying the new system. It seems to me that there is about the same difference between the old and the new systems of city government that is between the old fashioned blunderbuss that scattered in all directions, and the modern rifle that accurately reaches its mark.

But what do you say in answer to the objection that the new charter will give us a government by the few?

It will not be a government by the few. It will be a government by the many, all the citizens. What you saw the few practical politicians and business men who argue that sinister forces are behind the charter are like the man who Richard Brinsley Sheridan once said "was indebted to his memory for his wit and his imagination for his facts."

Do you think any one race or class would control the government of the city?

Certainly not. The members of the council, or the aldermen, are to be elected at large and as non-partisans. They must be well known and favorably known for some reason or other to get more votes at the primary election, than others who fall by the wayside. They must be representative men and good citizens wholly regardless of their race, creed or nationality. Edison, who is indeed one of the foremost and far seeing men of our times, recently said that the different national units in the United States will ultimately form the most progressive and advanced composite race in the world. Any individuals having sufficient ambition to leave other countries to escape despotic rule and enjoy the increased blessings and opportunities of our republic, can be trusted after sufficiently breathing "the atmosphere of our institutions" to favor the best government in our midst, wherever. To hold any other view is demagogic and expresses a lack not only of patriotism but of faith in human nature itself.

What will be the effect on wages of city employees? Will employees be decreased in number, and will they be unfeelingly urged to conform to some standard, as under some system of "scientific" management?

These are extremely important questions, and they are disturbing some of our means, and perhaps have not adequately considered the subjects. First the effect on wages will be beneficial. In the more careful management of the city's affairs more money will be saved for public improvements, more and better streets, sewers, etc. This will mean the employment of more labor, steadier employment and more certainty of regular payment, and a halt in the mad rush towards threatened insolvency of the city and delayed payment of wages as is being witnessed in several of our sister cities, which we need not name.

Will the employees be overdriven?

No, because the men will be citizens and have an equal voice in government with all other citizens. They should be willing in return for certainty of employment and the payment of fair wages to render fair and reasonable service. This would be only just and right. The city must pay high wages compared with those paid by private corporations. In no other way can the standard of wages in the community be maintained. Were the city to pay low wages, wages paid by others would be still lower. Hence, for the welfare of workmen generally, of necessity fair wages must be paid by the city. It always has been so for the same kind of work and in justice should be so, for that is one thing in which the city is bound to be liberal and just. The city should do nothing to bring down the standard of wages and living; otherwise, the tendency would be to impoverish its citizens, and further burden other citizens by increased taxation to build and support additional hospitals and almshouses.

I do not think public opinion would long support any administration that heartlessly crowded or underpaid its employees. It could well afford to pay well for valuable and willing service. If it should not, the people could only blame themselves if they tamely submitted to conditions, which, under the popular features of the new charter they have the power to modify.

Do you not think that a good deal of public work would be done under contract, and by citizens of other places?

I do not, because the citizens would at once command their officials to abandon such a policy.

TIGHTENS HER SKIN—LOSES HER WRINKLES

(From Social Mirror)

"I want to tell you how easily and quickly I got rid of my wrinkles," writes one of our correspondents. "While in London a friend much envied because of her youthful appearance, gave me a formula for a home-made preparation which has the effect of instantly tightening the skin, thus smoothing out wrinkles and furrows. The principal ingredient is powdered exsultite, which I found could be procured at drug stores here. An ounce of exsultite is dissolved in half pint of witch hazel. After bathing my face in this but once the transformation was so marvelous. I looked years younger. Even the deep crow's feet creases about my neck. It seems difficult to believe that anything could produce results like these, but several to whom I recommended the remedy have been similarly helped, including an elderly lady whose cheeks had become quite buggy."

Then you don't think that Wall street and the capitalists are behind the new charter?

Hardly. What have capitalists specially to gain under it? Of course monopolists would gain nothing from it. I differentiate between capitalists and monopolists as they have things their own way now. The interests of legitimate capital and labor are identical in municipal affairs as in state and nation. Each of these great factors of production is equally benefited by good city government. New industries would be attracted to our city and new opportunities for the wage-earner would be opened. More work for capital, more work for labor, and better returns for both. Those who argue that sinister forces are behind the charter are like the man who Richard Brinsley Sheridan once said "was indebted to his memory for his wit and his imagination for his facts."

New industries would be attracted to our

I would go even further than that. I would oppose any city officials who would not require all public service companies that employ labor within the city limits to employ only Lowell citizens. Why shouldn't they? They ask for franchises of the city, the right to use our streets and other public property. It would be but a meagre return for them to employ only our citizens within the city. This has not been done in the past, but should be corrected in the future.

It is true that such a condition precedent to the granting of franchises has not been incorporated in the charter. It would not be legal to do so. But there is no moral reason against the citizens criticizing their officials should they neglect to observe it, and visiting them with a recall should they be obstinate.

Are labor organizations against the new charter?

Of course no one outside of labor organizations can speak for them. I have been informed that some so-called labor men, (and by the way we are all labor men if we are engaged in rendering any useful service to our fellows) are or imagine they are opposed to the new charter. I have also been informed that no official action has been taken by such organizations against it. Why should an organized force in the community like the labor organizations whose purposes are laudable and which, as I have before said, constitute the only non-partisan and unimpeachably combined power, force that stands between the oppression and freedom whether politically or industrially considered—why, I repeat, should such an organized force be opposed to local self-government? They have if they but knew it the power to shape public opinion in the government of the city. It would be easy for them to create sufficient sympathy and support among the thrifty, industrious and law-abiding citizens not members of their organizations to secure beyond peradventure at all times a city government which would be administered in the true interests of all citizens, except those intent on exploiting the city for their own selfish advancement.

Why are you so much interested in the new charter?

I am interested for the reason that I am interested in popular government as a general proposition. That is the theory upon which all American institutions are founded, and upon that theory we must stand or fall. When I think of our popular government as it is, it is not a failure. It is a failure in our government, like Christianity, cannot be said to have failed until it has been tried. That is the reason I would like to see real popular government tried in our cities. When it proves a failure, if it does, it will be time enough to criticize it, and suggest another.

Another reason why I believe in the new charter, is because under it will be eliminated strictly party politics in our city government, and the attendant petty and purely personal factions that spring up under present conditions. The political energy of many of our young men is now used in discussing matters that are not legislative and economic. We have already seen that the legislative functions of the city are very small and relate only to local subjects such as the enactment of ordinances to carry out certain of the provisions of the charter. If the city government, has no relation whatever to general and important subjects of legislation such as a correct system of taxation in any of its various national and state aspects, the management and control of public utilities, a correct financial system, the correct relation of labor and capital to each other, and the many other subjects which would readily occur to us upon a moment's reflection. The point which I wish to make is that with a proper city government devoted to the public and legitimate business of the city it would tend more to interest our citizens and particularly the young men in the field of higher politics.

It would then be easier for them to keep posted in regard to city affairs, which would be conducted with great publicity. It is of course important that young men should continue to be interested in the city government, but shouldn't they also be more interested in the future in the great questions of legislation which are entirely beyond the scope of local government? What great interest do our young men now show in discussing the important economic and sociological questions which deeply concern the future of the country? It is difficult enough now for young men to start in business in a normal way with small capital and succeed. The young men of this generation or those of the next must understand why conditions in the commercial world have been permitted to become so artificial that their opportunities to succeed have been greatly and unjustly restricted. Sooner or later they must not only understand these causes but they must correct them. Therefore let young men and all men that labor, that is, all useful citizens, unite and settle the matter of local government, so that they may the better undertake the task of settling the great questions which more intimately relate to the economic and social welfare of the present and future generations, and which must be settled in the state and national halls of legislation.

The true function of a city government is efficiently and faithfully to execute the city's business. That the form of government provided for under the new charter will secure that result more effectively than that provided under the old charter is no doubt true.

We should allow ourselves to be guided by the experience of a large number of cities that have already adopted similar city governments, and vote at the election to accept the proposed new charter for our city.

LARGE ATTENDANCE

AT CELEBRATION OF ANNIVERSARY OF SWEDISH CHURCH

The second night of the celebration of the 50th anniversary of the foundation of the Swedish Congregational church was quite a feature among the parishioners. The program last night consisted of addresses by the pastor, Rev. John Elmen, and by two of the former pastors of the church.

Despite the inclement weather the little church in London street was well filled for its trouble. Rev. John Elmen called the meeting to order and after a few remarks introduced a former pastor of the church, Rev. J. P. Nelson, who delivered an interesting address. Later in the evening Rev. N. J. Johnson was also heard in a talk that proved very interesting. The benediction was given by Rev. Emil Holmblad followed by appropriate selections by the church choir.

SEVEN YEARS OF MISERY

All Relieved by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Sikeston, Mo. — "For seven years I suffered everything. I was in bed for four or five days at a time every month, and so weak that I could hardly walk. I cramped and had backache and headache, and was so nervous and weak that I dreaded to see anyone or have anyone move in the room. The doctors gave me medicine, but it did me no good at those times, and said that I ought to have an operation. I would not listen to that, and when a friend of my husband told him about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and what it had done for his wife, I was willing to take it. Now I look the picture of health and feel like it, too. I can do my own housework, hoe my garden, and milk a cow. I can entertain company and enjoy them. I can visit when I choose, and walk as far as any ordinary woman, any day in the month. I wish I could talk to every suffering woman and tell her — Mrs. DEMA BETHUNE, Sikeston, Mo."

The most successful remedy in this country for the cure of all forms of female complaints is Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It is used thousands of women who have been troubled with displacement, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing down feeling, indigestion, and nervous prostration, after all other means had failed. Why don't you try it?

Brookline Firemen Had Big Battle on Their Hands

BOSTON, Oct. 7.—Brookline firemen had a hard battle last night in extinguishing a fire in the big electrical works of Holtzer-Cabot corporation located on Station street, in that town.

Two alarms in quick succession called the department to the fire, and on reaching the big five-story building and finding it a mass of flames, help was secured from Boston.

The fight against the flames was a difficult and dangerous one, because of the character of the contents of the structure. The firemen were cautioned against entering or approaching too near the blazing structure because of explosion of chemicals and the dense poisonous smoke, almost sure death if inhaled.

The fire spread to the Brookline Storage Warehouse at midnight, an immense structure adjoining the Holtzer-Cabot Manufacturing company's factory and the firemen had all they could do to stop its spreading further. The fire started in the wooden building in rear of the five-story stone structure of the electrical manufacturing company's plant and spread rapidly through the stone building. The first alarm was sounded shortly after 11:30 o'clock and was followed closely by a second. The Boston department was then called on for assistance from Roxbury and Jamaica Plain, as well as from Brighton.

By midnight the entire town was alarmed. It looked at that time as if the firemen would fail in containing the blaze because of their inability to cope with it at close quarters. But the risk had so thoroughly drenched the roofs surrounding the structure that they were successful in holding it largely to the electrical works.

An estimate of the loss because of the valuable machinery and electrical material in the factory was given as over $150,000.

The Holtzer-Cabot electric factory is in the heart of Brookline village, and employs over 250 men and women.

ALL THE PARIS BANKS

Were Not Prepared to Pay in Gold

PARIS, Oct. 7.—Persons having occasions to cash checks in the middle of September learned to their surprise that none of the Paris banks was prepared to pay in gold. An American gentleman who presented a check for 3000 francs at the bank of France was given only 600 in gold and his request for more, refused.

The boulevard branch of one of the largest French banks which usually starts the day with from 25,000 to 30,000 francs in gold, recently had 1000 and was unable to obtain more. Payment was made in five-franc pieces, which are legal tender up to any amount; indeed, the dividends of government stock are always paid in these bulky coins.

This stoppage of the gold issue is mainly due to the fact that the agents of a number of German banks were buying up gold as fast as they could, paying 5 francs per 1,000 premium. In addition to sending messengers to cash checks and notes at every bank in the city, these agents took all the gold from the big department stores until the attention of the directors of Everyday people in France certainly have been afraid that war was coming. The common people of Paris having in mind the hardships that they have heard were undergone in the siege of 1870-71, have been hoarding food, dried beans, dried fruits, preserved meats and other articles. Food that a few months' storage will not damage. The great provision houses are entirely bought out of some lines of these goods. Another reason besides vague apprehension of a siege, has been the knowledge that should war begin, the prices of food would rise and the thrifty French housewife has taken the precaution to buy some sort of food in advance when prices are normal.

Animal Specimens

Alfred M. Collins and E. Marshall Scott, of Philadelphia, have sailed from Marseilles on their way to Central African hunting fields to collect specimens of large and small animals for the Philadelphia Academy of Natural Sciences. They go by way of Alexandria, Port Said, Suez and Aden, to British East Africa. Their expedition will organize at Nairobi, from where they design to penetrate to parts of equatorial Africa little known to the outside world. They take with them fifty cases of equipment bought in London for their party, which will number 100 native soldiers, porters, and servants under the command of a professional white hunter, George H. Oultram.

Collins and Scott expect to be in the interior about three months, and to bring back for the museum specimens to be mounted entire of lions, rhinoceros, giraffe, hippopotamus, zebra, eland, harlebeest, smaller animals and butterflies. After they have finished the African raid they will return home by way of India, China and Japan in the spring of 1912.

Aeroplane Scouting

Results of the aeroplane scouting at the French manoeuvres are agreed by the military critics to have been admirable. The aviators showed accuracy, energy and accuracy of observation, and yet the limitations of air scouting were never seen more clearly.

The aeroplane is a bird of the day. It rises with the dawn and ceases to fly with the twilight. During the night troops are free to move without eyes peering at them from above. The aeroplane is also a fair-weather bird, very useful during clear fine days, but obliged to seek shelter from high winds, and whose eyes are dulled by rain fog and cloud.

The most effective of Turennes' campaigns, that in Alsace, took place in winter. Austerlitz was fought on December 2 and the battle of Eylau was contested in a snow storm. The budget for military aeronautics next year is $3,025,000. France will have about 200 army aeroplanes next summer.

ARMY AVIATORS

TO GIVE DEMONSTRATIONS AT ROCKINGHAM PARK

The grand aviation meet at Rockingham park, Salem, N. H., on Columbus day, next Thursday, Oct. 12, will be in the nature of a very practical demonstration of the value of the aviator and his aeroplane in actual warfare. The United States has now in regular service a number of licensed aviators who form the nucleus of an aerial war fleet, and three of these have been engaged for the aviation demonstrations next Thursday. Better known to Bostonians as the biplane winner in the tri-state race on Labor day last is Lieut. T. D. Milling of the U. S. army. He will be one of the aviators next Thursday, flying the Burgess-Wright aeroplane which brought him back to the Harvard aviation field victorious on Labor day after making the aerial circuit of Nashua, Worcester, Providence and Atlantic Mass. Another will be Capt. Paul W. Beck of the U. S. army, who flies a 70 horsepower Curtiss biplane. He established the official aerial mail route by flying with Postmaster General Hitchcock as passenger, carrying U. S. mail, still another will be Lieut. E. H. Arnold of the U. S. army. One feature of the aerial war manoeuvres will be to place in hiding several details of soldiers from the Massachusetts and New Hampshire militias on the outskirts of the park and send the aviators out as aerial scouts to try and locate their position and come back and report their numbers, locality and equipment. But these practical tests will be but one feature of the afternoon's exhibition. Some hair-raising aerial stunts are promised by these skilled aviators who rank high for daring as well as skill among the world's most famous birdmen. A war balloon, operated by Sig. Bonnette, the world's most famous aeronaut, will also figure as an important part of the program. Bonnette will carry officers of the state militia up in his balloon for reconnoitering purposes and will prove a valuable assistant in scout duty. In the way of pure exhibition work Bonnette will make an ascension of at least two miles up in the air and from this dizzy height will make a death defying triple parachute drop. No other aeronaut has ever been able to accomplish this, and while he has had some very narrow escapes in negotiating this hair-raising feat, he has always managed to land on terra firma whole and unbroken, though bruised and badly scared.

The most interesting announcement in connection with the approaching aviation meet is that there is a very good prospect that we shall have the privilege of witnessing performances of the first woman aviator in New England. This is Miss Dietrich, a petite and pretty French young woman recently came to this country from Paris to compete in the aviation meet at Nassau boulevard aerodrome, Long Island.

DAMAGE IS $50,000 TODAY'S STOCK MARKET

Fire in the Saling Block at Rochester, N. H.

ROCHESTER, N. H., Oct. 7.—Fire, which was discovered in the Saling block in Central square at 11:20 last night, caused a loss of about $50,000 before it was extinguished.

The blaze was discovered by Edgar Varney, who was attending a dancing party on the third floor. Mr. Varney went into a lavatory and found the partitions burning fiercely. He returned to the dance hall and informed the gathering, all of whom left in safety, and afterward the alarm was sounded.

The building, which was one of the finest in the city, was four stories in height and was occupied on the street floor by Isadore Saling & Son, dry goods dealers; on the second by the Merchants' club and Arthur M. Brock, barber, and on the third by the Peaslee Business college and a dance hall. The fourth floor was unoccupied.

The loss in the Saling store was about $25,000, caused principally by smoke and water; to the Merchants' club and Brock's barber shop $500 and $300 respectively and to the college about $500. The building was damaged to the extent of nearly $25,000.

It is believed that the fire was caused by the blowing of the flame from a gas jet against the wall. The building stood on the site of another which was destroyed by fire in August, 1909, and rebuilt.

Who Will Displace Foe of Bryan

CHICAGO, Oct. 7.—It is generally understood that Congressman Henry T. Rainey will be made democratic national committee man from Illinois to succeed Roger Sullivan. Sullivan was bitterly fought by William Jennings Bryan and is now opposed by Mayor Carter Harrison and the W. R. Hearst forces.

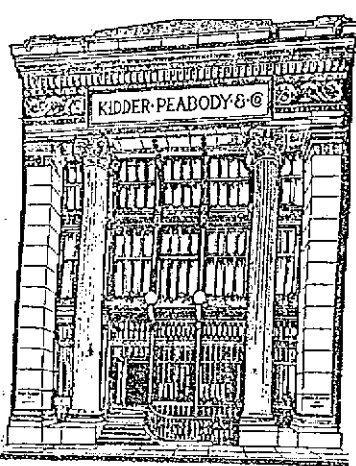

Prisoner's Plans Balked by Firemen

BOSTON, Oct. 7.—An attempt to escape from a cell in the Back Bay police station that came close to success was made by digging mortar from the cell bricks with a board with a nail fastened on the end, by Leon Guido, alleged poor box thief, who defaulted bail in the superior court yesterday.

STOCK MARKET

WAS FIRM AT THE CLOSE THIS NOON

Purchases To Cover With Pool Manipulation Of Speculators Advanced Prices—There Was a Fall in the Common Stock

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—The opening prices on the stock exchange today were somewhat below yesterday's final range, although losses of the more active issues were not large. U. S. Steel, which closed yesterday at 58 1/4, opened with a block of 5000 at 58 1/4, and Colorado Southern pfd. and back to point and American Smelting and Refining Co. pfd. and U. P. and Reading were unchanged.

An inquiry for Reading which lifted it to a half point above yesterday's closing prompted an upward movement in the general market. St. Paul, U. P. and Atchafalaya made a similar gain and the general market was displaying increasing strength when the close was terminated by the unloading of large blocks of U. S. Steel. Many thousands of shares of this stock were ordered by the notice bear profession, and it gave way from 58 1/4 to 57 1/4.

Another unsettling influence was the sensational decline in Allis Chalmers five per cent bonds, which opened 65 points lower at 60 and receded to 58. The common stock yielded 1 1/4 at 114 and the pfd. 2 1/4 at 115.

The market closed firm. Purchases to cover with pool manipulation of various specialties turned the course of prices upward again and best figures of the session were reached. The effect of the slump in the Allis Chalmers securities were offset despite a further fall in the common stock. American Tobacco pfd. and affiliated issues were notably strong.

ARE WITHOUT FOOD

2000 Inhabitants of Black River Falls Appeal For Aid

LACROSSE, Wis., Oct. 7.—The 2000 inhabitants of Black River Falls today are without food or shelter after spending a night on the hills watching the waters from the flood of the Black River overrun their town. Through Mayor McGill they sent out an appeal to the people of the country for assistance. The town continues cut off from the world by regular telegraph and telephone and it was only by again resorting to the expedient of sending a man up a telephone pole on the edge of the town that the cry for help could be sent out. The population fled yesterday without stopping to take extra clothing. They spent a disagreeable day under a pitiless rain but in the evening the weather cleared and there was less suffering from exposure during the night. All along the hills campfires burned while below in the darkness could be heard the rush of waters engulfing the city. The mayor of Black River Falls today said that it would be several days before the flood receded sufficiently to permit even an examination of the ruins and that the need of relief was imperative. Immediately after his message was received here, a special meeting of the Lacrosse council was called to consider relief measures.

The attempt took place on Sept. 29 and was discovered by pure accident. The firemen were in their smoking room swapping stories. From a window they could look into two cells out of the dozen and more that are in a row in the station. Guido's happened to be one of these cells.

But for the firemen, Guido could have made a getaway. He had 15 minutes before a guard was due to pass his cell door again, and then, by standing in front of the hole he could have hidden it.

The next day Guido was arraigned in the district court, pleaded not guilty to a charge of robbing post boxes in St. Cecilia's church, Belvidere street, Black River, and he was held out by a man who said he was William Hickey, a Dorchester contractor.

Patrolman McKinnon, arresting officer, waited about all day for him yesterday and when he did not appear in the superior court a default warrant against him was sworn out.

Guido has served 7 years in prison for stealing from church post boxes, which is the only kind of theft ever charged against him. Four terms, aggregating 6 years, he has spent in Sing Sing, another term in Philadelphia and other terms in the west.

He has gone under the names of Levine, Carbone, Muniere and Bernard, but always has been identified by Bertillon measurements.

NEW INDUSTRIES

Are Seeking Locations in No. Chelmsford

The directors of the Chelmsford board of trade met at the town hall, last evening to act on the recommendations of the committees on public buildings, street lighting, village improvements, etc., the principal topic of discussion being the existing conditions at the plant of the Whitman Rendering company in West Chelmsford from which offensive odors have emanated. Before the meeting the president and a member of the board of directors made a tour of inspection and investigated the causes of the complaints submitting a lengthy report at the meeting. Mr. Pratt appeared before the directors and assured them that he was as anxious as they were to remedy the evil and stated that he would attend the next regular meeting of the board and inform the members of what was being done to correct the nuisance.

The directors will report on the matter at the regular meeting, October 12.

The directors have received a communication to the effect that a Boston firm is desirous of locating in North Chelmsford. This firm requires a building of three or four stories, containing about 15,000 square feet floor space, suitable for an industry and as yet existing in this locality or even in Lowell. Another firm, with its plant at present in New York city, is seeking some five or six acres of land with proper shipping facilities.

RACE FOR BENNETT TROPHY

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Oct. 7.—With only one balloon, the Berlin II, still in the air, the race for the Bennett trophy, which started from here on Thursday, is now between the United States and Germany. Of the five balloons in the international race that have landed, the Buckeye, an American balloon, made the greatest distance, 650 miles. The Berlin II must beat this mark to lift the cup.

No word has been received from the German balloon since the race started. All the balloons that have come to earth were caught in a storm in Minnesota. The latest balloon reported down is the Condor III, representing France. It fell last night near Mingo, Ia., after having been blown back more than a hundred miles.

NEW EVENING SCHOOL

Howard Street School to be Used for That Purpose

The committee on evening schools has decided to open the Howard street schoolhouse for evening school purposes, and has appointed Miss Alice Garrigan as teacher. Miss Garrigan has had seventeen years' experience in evening school work in the Algonquin and Greenhalge schools, and is well adapted to the work of her new position. The school will open Monday evening next.

Must Go to School

Tenant Officer Thornton has examined all persons between the ages of 16 and 21 employed in the Lawrence mill and 134 of those examined will be obliged to attend the evening school. Similar examinations will be made in other mills, and Mr. Thornton says he understands that there are 250 or more in the Massachusetts mills who will have to attend the evening schools.

State Board of Health

Some time ago representatives of the state board of health came to Lowell, got plans of the sewers here and visited the outlets. It was understood that their visit here was due to complaints made direct to the state board on Monday or Tuesday of next week representative of the state board is coming here to measure the sewage flow of all outlets into the Merrimack and Concord rivers.

Webster Street Sewer

Work has been started on the Webster street sewer. The sewer will extend from Middlesex street to the Rutland street sewer and will cross the Princeton boulevard. In order to interfere with the Princeton boulevard, which is a state highway, it was necessary to get the consent of the state highway commission and City Engineer Kearney has received the necessary permits. The work was started on the Webster street end of the sewer.

ITALIAN GOVERNOR

Warns People of Tripoli That They Must be Obedient

ROME, Oct. 7 (via frontier).—To-day's advice from Tripoli states that the Italian governor, Rear Admiral Borea D'Onofrio, has issued a proclamation announcing that the town is in a state of siege and warning the population eventually open up the country as yet unexplored or little known. According to further advice from Tripoli the small Italian warships are engaged in searching for and removing mines that were laid by the Turks in Tripoli harbor in order that the transport bearing the troops from Italy may enter in safety. Nearly the entire body of the Tripolitan police has offered to enter the Italian service and similar offers have been received from other local officials.

ITALIAN CRUISERS

SHELLED THE TOWN OF ST. JEAN DE MEDUA

ROME, Hungary, Oct. 7.—An Italian sailing vessel having been sunk by the Turkish guns at St. Jean de Medua, two Italian cruisers shelled the town and then proceeded to sea.

ITALIAN STEAMERS

ARE HELD UP BY THE TURKS—ITALY WILL PROTEST

ROME, Oct. 7.—Official circles while realizing the anxiety of foreign countries to see the Turco-Italian conflict ended and the possibility of complications avoided, wish to warn public opinion abroad that while the Italian fleet has taken possession of Tripoli and Cyrenenah, the occupation cannot be considered an accomplished fact in the sense that it renders possible that intervention by the powers which Italy in due time will welcome but which at the present moment would be inappropriate.

Before anything of the kind occurs the Italian troops must land and in reality occupy not only the coast but also the interior of the province in order to make sure that any remaining resistance of Turkey shall be overcome.

This much has already been agreed upon between Italy and the powers, and the sentiments set forth in the foregoing statements are not intended for other governments with which Italy is in perfect accord but simply to quiet public opinion and dampen the ardor of certain sections of the press.

The feeling of the Italian public generally was illustrated in the triumphant progress of the king and queen and their children from the castle at Racconigi to the hunting lodge at San Rossore near Pisa.

It is charged that Turkey is not obeying the international rules of warfare. Italy has released all the Turkish steamers which were seized in Italian harbors when war was declared, or arriving soon afterwards, their commanders not having learned of the beginning of hostilities. Turkey, on the contrary, has hoisted the Ottoman flag over the Italian steamers Ernesto, Harid and Metria, which were seized along the coast and are manning them with Turks by using them for their own purposes.

It is believed they will do the same with the smaller Italian craft captured in the Aegean sea. Italy will protest on the ground that this action is in violation of the convention signed at the close of the Crimean war, which provided that merchant vessels should be given time after hostilities had begun to reach safe waters.

It is learned today that the Italians have occupied Derna and the coast of Bombah gulf. This is revealed in the plan of the Italian campaign in northern Africa. The object was to insure, above all else, the occupation of Cyrenenah, which is the richest part of the invaded country. Accordingly, a great naval display was made before Tripoli to deceive the Turks while Rear Admiral Aubrey, following a party of the Turkish fleet, landed a force from the Vittoria at Tobruk, occupying Bombah gulf and Derna.

A telegram from Cairo today says that the Italian cruiser Puglia, now at Port Said, has been instructed to watch the Suez canal for Turkish soldiers and see that they are not employed against Italy. The Egyptian government has notified the soldiers that they will not be allowed to leave.

A wireless message from Tripoli this afternoon says that Vice Admiral Faravelli has issued orders that no one shall go into the interior beyond the range of the guns of the fleet. The town has been animated, public services are being restored and the natives who left the city are returning. The Italian sailors are busy building roads and repairing the buildings damaged by the bombardment.

Armand and Leo Vigneault, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Rodolphe Vigneault of Gresham avenue, are critically ill, suffering from pneumonia.

BOSTON, Oct. 7.—Pitted against Walter Johnson, "Buck" O'Brien, Boston's recruit pitcher, maintained his mastery of batters yesterday and Boston won from Washington, 3 to 1. The victors' only tally was made possible by Speaker's muck to Street's fly which went for two bases. The locals hit Johnson opportunely. The score:

THE LOWELL GUILD
Heard Reports at its Regular Meeting

A meeting of the Lowell Guild was held yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Edward N. Burke, in Nemuth street, with a large attendance.

The report of the milk station and district nurses was submitted by Miss Annie R. Moore as follows:

"Number of calls, metropolitan, 1901; regular, including milk station calls, 3027. From July 1 to Sept. 11 we had two extra distributing stations. From July 1 to August 25 we had a nurse for one hour on the Alken street playground for five days in each week. We also gave talks on personal hygiene to the older girls in the schoolrooms on Cheever, Common and Summer streets."

"During August and September the milk station work was increased, as many of the ladies were sick and needed extra attention. These calls kept Miss Chubbourn and her assistants very busy."

"There are great opportunities for social work in connection with our work, and I think we would have better results if we could cooperate with those who could give more time to social work than we can."

It was decided to hold a Christmas sale in December.

PLEADED NOT GUILTY

Dracut Man Charged With Selling Watered Milk

The great portion of the time of the police court this morning was taken up with the complaint against Frank L. Peabody of Dracut, charged with selling watered milk. He pleaded not guilty and was represented by Attorney Stanley E. Qua. The chairman of the board of health appeared for the government. The commonwealth introduced its testimony and the defense had just proceeded to call witnesses and had begun to examine the first witness the defendant, Frank L. Peabody, when Judge Hadley thought that on account of the importance of the case and technical testimony that it had better be continued until Monday morning at 11 o'clock. The assistant milk inspector, James E. Hill, and the inspector of milk, vinegar and other food products, Melvin N. Master, testified for the government.

Non-Support Case. William A. P. Bird was charged with non-support and after due consideration the court decided that he be placed in the care of the probation officer, and also ordered that he pay the sum of $4 a week to the probation officer, the said sum to be paid to the wife of Mr. Bird.

Case Continued. Antonias Tsumiludus was charged with receiving stolen property, and pleaded not guilty. He was represented by Attorney Bernard J. Golden of Woburn, and Daniel J. Donahue appeared for the commonwealth. The case was continued until next Tuesday morning.

Drunk Offenders. John Jackson, charged with drunkenness, was sentenced to the Lowell jail for the next four months.

MAN AND WIFE DEAD

Were Killed by Snowslide That Destroyed Their Home

SKAGWAY, Alaska, Oct. 7.—Stanley McLellan and his wife were killed yesterday by a snowslide that demolished their home at the Partridge mine on the west arm of Lake Allyn, Y. T.

Victor Carlson, who was standing near the house, was caught up by the avalanche and carried a thousand feet down the mountain. He suffered several broken ribs but will recover.

FUNERAL NOTICES. FLEMING.—The funeral of the late Mary Fleming will take place Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the home of her father, Martin Fleming, rear of 135 Lakeview avenue. Mass of requiem will be celebrated at St. Michael's church, Monday morning. Funeral arrangements are in charge of Undertakers C. H. Molloy & Sons.

TO PREVENT BED SORES. Both physicians and nurses greatly dread the formation of bed sores, so likely to occur on the backs of patients long confined to bed. The pressure of the body, and the perspiration, often cause almost incurable sores. By dusting the patient freely with Comfort Powder several times daily all such trouble is prevented. Caroline Angus, trained nurse, New York, says: "It certainly keeps the sick comfortable and is a certain preventive and cure for bed sores." Comfort Powder is a skin healing wonder. E. S. Sykes' signature is on the genuine.

THE TROUBLE IN PORTUGAL

LISBON, Oct. 7.—Semi-official intelligence regarding the monarchist incursion fixes the number of royalists who crossed the Spanish frontier near Vinhaes at 1250. The republican troops garrisoning Vinhaes after a skirmish with the invaders retreated.

Later two regiments of infantry and one of cavalry were sent to the field by the republican commandant at Villa Real. They engaged the royalists who, after fighting an hour and a half, slowly gave way and retired to the more mountainous district in the direction of Spain. The republican losses were insignificant.

CAUSED HEAVY DAMAGE

WAUSAU, Wis., Oct. 7.—Lake Wausau broke through the embankments at both ends of the Rothschild dam today, carrying away tons of earth and doing several thousand dollars worth of damage. Dynamite blasting was employed to form a greater channel and draw away the water from the east end, where it is flowing in the streets.

The Wisconsin river has reached eight and a half feet above normal, which is the equal of the record of 1881, the highest so far known. The water is receding rapidly.

No trains are running on the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul road on this division, as the tracks are under water.

THE TAFT TRAIN

WAS DELAYED BY A STALLED MAIL TRAIN

BAKER, Ore., Oct. 7.—President Taft's special was delayed more than 30 minutes last night by a stalled mail train. The alrhone on the mail train had been cut by unknown persons. The president's train finally drew into Baker and was closely watched while here but no attempt was made to delay it. The cutting of the base on the mail train was the recurrence of a similar event Thursday. Railroad officials have set a special watch to prevent its repetition.

PRES. ELIOT

WROTE INSCRIPTION FOR NEW POSTOFFICE BUILDING

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7.—The only inscriptions which will be placed on the new postoffice building here, bids for the construction of which will be opened Oct. 19, have been written by President Eliot.

Mr. Eliot was requested to write the inscriptions by the architects and they have been approved by Secretary of the Treasury MacVeagh. The following will be inscribed on the pavilion:

"Carrier of news and knowledge, instrument of trade and commerce, promoter of mutual acquaintance among men and nations and hence of peace and good will."

PRES. TAFT

HAS ALREADY TRAVELLED THROUGH FIFTEEN STATES

WALLA WALLA, Wash., Oct. 7.—Coming into Washington today, President Taft finished the first half of his tour and touched the first state bordering on the Pacific ocean. Since he left Beverly on Sept. 15 the president has traversed fifteen states. He has made more than a hundred speeches on various subjects. So far the president has stood the trip remarkably well. Even the high altitude of Colorado, Wyoming and Utah failed to dampen his ardor and he seems to have withstood the inconvenience of three weeks in sleeping cars better than younger men in his party.

The program for the president here included the usual inspection of the town by automobile and an address. From Walla Walla, Mr. Taft will go to Lewiston and Moscow, Idaho and Spokane, Washington. He will leave Spokane tonight for Seattle and Tacoma. From there the president will be taken by auto up the slopes of Mount Rainier.

STRIKE SETTLED. ATLANTA, Ga., Oct. 7.—A message today from Chairman Teat of the board of directors of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Engineers says that the strike of the firemen on the Georgia & Florida railroad is settled. The men will get 50 per cent of the engineers' pay, as demanded.

LIEUT. CORCHARD

IS CHARGED WITH EMBEZZLEMENT OF $12,500

VALDEZ, Alaska, Oct. 7.—Lieut. Samuel Corchard, disbursing officer of the Alaska road commission, who is charged with the embezzlement of $12,500 of government funds and who has been under court martial trial here for several weeks, left on a steamer for Seattle today, a prisoner. He will be taken to Fort Lawton. The court-martial's findings have not been announced.

THE NEED OF PUBLIC SPIRIT

We are glad to note that the treasury of the city of Lawrence is again supplied with funds to meet all present demands. The people of that city are showing good public spirit for which they are to be commended. No city can prosper unless the citizens take sufficient interest in its government and its welfare to give it a boost whenever they can.

The worst quality that can be shown by the average citizen is indifference to the public welfare as represented in the success of the city government. It is perhaps too much to expect that every citizen will realize his individual responsibility for the management of the municipality. But every man who has a vote has a share in the government of his city, his state, and his country, and it often happens that a single vote will decide a contest as between the friends and the enemies of good government.

Too much stress cannot be laid upon this matter of individual responsibility for right results in city government. With the proper appreciation of individual duty and with the added civic virtue of public spirit every city can prosper unless it be very seriously handicapped by an antiquated charter or by adverse conditions of some other kind.

Here in Lowell we are favored by Nature with two magnificent rivers meeting at the business centre of the city, two rivers that supply water power for many great industries. Some people imagine that Lowell, for some reason or other, has not the advantages for manufacturing purposes and industrial progress that are enjoyed by other Massachusetts cities. The sooner this idea be dropped the better. Lowell is all right. Her resources are equal or superior to those of any other city in the state, and they only await development. There are tibets of the very best land for residential and business purposes in the suburbs awaiting the call of enterprise. Some time ago a realty company was proposed that might build factories, and then lease them to manufacturing companies. That is a good idea, and one that is working most successfully in other cities. Haverhill may be mentioned as one of the cities in which a realty company is doing grand work for the community. This is an opportunity that the people of Lowell seem to let slip by. There are very many other opportunities of a similar kind that are not appreciated by the people of our city. Too many of our citizens have the idea that they have to go out of town to invest their money to advantage. That explains why so many of them have lost heavily in bogus mining stocks and various wild cat schemes. That also explains why outsiders, some as the Bradley Bros. of Lawrence, and a few more who might be mentioned, come in here to buy up real estate that seems to have no attraction for citizens of Lowell. The question might be asked: Have our Lowell citizens become blind to good business opportunities? It is time that we had a little better application of local public spirit among our citizens. It is time the men who are investing their money outside should make up their minds that they can do quite as well at home, and have the added assurance that in any case they will not lose their money.

It is the candid opinion of a good many shrewd business men in this city that unless we adopt the new charter and take a deeper interest in our municipal affairs the city of Lowell in about five or six years will be as deeply embarrassed financially as the city of Lawrence has been during the last few months. Lawrence has been victimized by bad management and a defective charter. Her people are sure to adopt a new charter at the coming state election, and then the down river city will start upon a new career of progress and prosperity that will eclipse anything in her past history. Her citizens have now become aroused and are evidently determined to lift her out of the slough of despond in which she has been deposited by mismanagement, fraud and political trickery.

It therefore behooves the city of Lowell to take an onward step at the same time in the adoption of the new charter so that the business of this city will be conducted on business principles, that responsibility will be centered so that the people will readily find where the blame lies if anything goes wrong and thus be able promptly and effectively to apply the remedy.

THE STATE TICKETS AND PLATFORMS

The democratic ticket and platform are now before the public, and both are progressive and up to date, while on the republican side the candidate who heads the ticket represents the hardshelled republican who would vote for a yellow dog if it wore a republican collar. The state in Governor Foss has one of the ablest and best executives it has ever had, and hence the duty and responsibility of his reelection rests upon the voters regardless of party. His partisanship is not of the offensive kind as in his appointments he selected republicans whenever he thought that fair play and the public interests would thereby be best subserved.

In his speech at the democratic convention, Governor Foss made an appeal for the reduction of import duties on foodstuffs and free raw materials and punctured some of the fulminations of the republican papers in regard to the reciprocity issue as they assailed the governor for its defeat. His Excellency, however, shows that it was the standpat republicans who first gave out the annexation bogey that defeated reciprocity with Canada. President Taft himself did this in his "parting of the ways" speech. Congressmen Bennett of New York, Poche of Pennsylvania and Gardner of Massachusetts were all parties to setting the annexation scare in motion.

But Governor Foss does not believe that reciprocity is a dead issue despite the fact that the standpaters have shown satisfaction at the action of Canada. The Canadians are not afraid of the reciprocity agreement when free from complicating issues injected to serve republican ends.

Governor Foss showed the inconsistency of the republican party on the tariff issue and ably answered the attacks directed at himself upon this issue.

In 1909 and 1910 the republicans of this state warmly commended the Payne-Aldrich tariff law, but this year, in view of the changed order of things, they have modified their attitude and now recommend a "reasonable and scientific revision," and even suggest that part of this scientific process be "downward." The national party promised revision downward, but gave revision upward, and it is now useless for the republicans of Massachusetts to attempt to retrieve the ground lost as a result of that national act of perfidy. As usual the republican platform is a dexterous combination of platitude and evasions. Senator Lodge, an artist in drafting ambiguous and non-committal platforms, could scarcely have done a better job.

In striking contrast is the platform of the democratic party, speaking out plainly and boldly for a federal income tax amendment, the popular election of United States senators, for the initiative and referendum in state legislation, the removal of the duties from foodstuffs and the raw materials of our manufactures. The planks for the development of agriculture, a permanent state finance commission and for a revision of our vicious tax system are also progressive and in line with the best public policy.

The record of Governor Foss was reviewed in the platform pointing out that special privilege no longer dictates in the executive chamber, that integrity, industry and zeal for the public interest have marked his service. Brave yet cautious, progressive yet deliberate, his business ability and added experience commends him to the suffrage of the people.

The fame of the late Admiral Schley is secure despite the efforts of those who tried to cast a doubt upon his prowess as a naval commander. His valor and his patriotism had been too often tested to be snuffed out by the friends of a jealous rival who claimed the honor of the Santiago naval victory won in his absence with Admiral Schley in command.

Dr. Harvey W. Wiley is back on the job as head of the federal bureau of chemistry with full powers. Public sentiment compelled the president to put him back despite the recommendation of Wickersham for "condign punishment" for an offense that, compared with many laid at Wickersham's door, was an indeterminate quantity.

THE CONTRAST
Love wings above the world his way—
A tender, laughing, radiant thing;
And eager hands and welcoming
Are stretched to meet him day by day,
And this is ecstasy.

Love wings above the world his way
And some must walk with downcast
eyes
And clenching hands; for when love
flies
Not even thought can safely stay,
And this is agony.

Craig Biddle, at a dinner in Newport, defended cosmetics and attacked scandal-mongering in one neat epigram.

An elderly matron was criticizing certain young girls for using rouge and powder in what she deemed an immodest manner.

"But," said Mr. Biddle, "those girls were educated in France, and over there, as you know, cosmetics are looked on as necessary—the same as we look on bread and meat."

"Nevertheless," said the matron, "I have my suspicions about girls who paint like that."

"Well, as for me," the young man retorted, "I think it is far better for a lady to render her own cheeks than to blacken other ladies' characters."

Interesting light has been thrown incidentally upon the Bible by certain pupils in the Liverpool elementary schools, says a correspondent of the Daily News, who have been employed in producing essays on the history of the British Bible and its influence on the national life. The Bible, which is called the "Breeches Bible," it is interesting to learn, earned its peculiar name in the following way:

"There was a Bible which contained fig tree leaves sewn together in one bunch, and was called 'The Breech.' Shortly afterwards it was called the 'Breeches Bible.'"

A train traveling through the west was held up by masked bandits. Two friends, who were on their way to California, were among the passengers.

"Here's where we lose all our money," one said, as the robber entered the car.

"You don't think they'll take everything, do you?" the other asked nervously.

"Certainly," the first replied. "These fellows never miss anything."

"That will be terrible," the second friend said. "Are you quite sure they won't leave us any money?" he persisted.

"Of course," was the reply. "Why do you ask?"

The other was silent for a minute. Then, taking a fifty-dollar note from his pocket, he handed it to his friend.

"What is this for?" the first asked, taking the money.

"That's the fifty dollars I owe you," the other answered. "Now, we're square."

While waiting in the square for a car the other night I was approached by a stranger. Of some 45 years, robust physique, shrewd countenance and unkempt appearance, he looked to be an individual who in his time had passed through many vicissitudes and had at last arrived at that philosophical condition of mind in which such a one is content to exist from day to day as hapazard circumstances, not himself, shall will it.

After asking for the whereabouts of a secure a night's lodging—for this was the purpose of his unconventional interview—he related some interesting incidents and yarns of his career on the road. This was his mode of life, he said, he had followed from the time when, after long and profound meditation, he had concluded that the trade which he followed was for him of too arduous a nature—that of a printer.

One of the incidents may be worth repeating.

"It occurred," said he, "on a sizzling July afternoon. The sun, which radiated a heat comparable with no fires of this earth, blazed fiercely upon my head as I dragged my legs along the dusty, desolate road. My feet seemed to be encased, not in number ten brogue, but in some devilishly contrived receptacles ingeniously formed, so it appeared, for the sole purpose of inflicting discomfort upon the unfortunate wearer. Silence reigned upon the lonesome, far-flung countryside; that is, upon that portion over which I had the misfortune of being compelled to travel. Not the slightest zephyr cooled my burning face; upon which the admixture of dust and sweat had formed an outer covering that irritated the skin in a most uncomfortable manner."

As I trudged along my troubles were aggravated by clouds of thick, hot, choking dust that trailed in the wake of passing automobiles. The occupants of these vehicles I could see (after rubbing and digging the dust from my eyes) following on their soft seats, could picture in my mind over so vividly the refreshing currents of cool, refreshing, wholesome air that caressed these beings of ease who needed it not; could imagine the possible comments of a local description passed among them as they witnessed my dusty but, I may add, not unpicturesque appearance.

"And I trod along. Unmerciful that afternoon was Old Sol. At last I could discern in the distance a house and a group of low sheds that appeared to be the dwelling places of pigs. My spirits rose and I pressed joyfully forward. Soon the haven was at hand. Entering the farmyard and gingerly on the lookout for its usual guardian—a creature against whom I hold the bitterest antipathy—I rapped on the door. This was opened by a stern visaged lantern-jawed looking woman, who, in a none too agreeable tone, asked sharply what was wanted."

"Water, to the quantity of a jugful, madam," I answered.

"Water can't be had here by you,"

this virago returned. Our well is dry and we need what little water we have for ourselves and the pigs. But if you walk along unceasing to the next house you can get plenty."

"How far is the 'piece'?" I inquired.

"Oh, I calculate about some seven miles."

"And I started along."

WHEN THE WINDS ARE RAGING
When winds are raging o'er the upper ocean,
And billows wild contend with angry roar,
'Twas said, far down beneath the wild commotion,
That peaceful stillness reigneth, evermore.

Far, far beneath the noise of tempest die,
And silver waves chime ever peacefully,
And no rude storm, how fierce so'er he flie,
Disturbs the Sabbath of that deep-sea sea.

So to the heart that knows Thy love, O Purest,
There is a temple, sacred evermore,
And all the babble of life's angry voices
Dies in hushed stillness at its peaceful door.

Far, far away the roar of passion die,
And loving thoughts rise calm and peacefully,
And no rude storm, how fierce so'er he flie,
Disturbs the soul that dwells, O Lord, in Thee.

O rest of rests! O peace serene, eternal!
Thou ever livest and thou changest never,
And in the secret of Thy presence dwelleth
Fullness of joy—forever and forever.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

Springfield Republican: The development of electrical transmission has given an undreamed of potential value to remote canals and precipitous ravines where water can be stored and utilized at high pressure. Economists are rightly reaching the prompt use of every available source of inexhaustible energy. In order to lessen the enormous waste of the world's limited coal supply. We have been living, for the century past, in a bonanza age, the age of machinery and cheap carbon; the longer it can be stretched out, the better for the prosperity of the world.

Moreover, the artificial storage of rainfall upon great watersheds is being plausibly advocated as a substitute for, or auxiliary to, our vanishing forests for the prevention alike of periods of drought. Cities, too, reach into remote mountains for their water supply. Big dams are the order of the day, from Gatun to Assouan, and this tendency will accelerate as coal grows dearer and as the exploitation of power on a large scale becomes systematized. It is only a matter of time when every suitable water-course, great or small, will have its pent-up reservoir, source of light, heat, wealth, prosperity and happiness, or ruin and death as ghastly as ever spouted from the red mouth of a volcano. Which is it to be? Needless to say, fire and flood is the besetting sin of America. No occasion should be lost to drive home the lesson. Waterpower is to be developed, as developed on an enormous scale, but must be under a rigorous supervision and censorship such as never has been known in the age of modest isolated enterprises out of which we are emerging. And it must be made a rule with no exceptions that no convenience or profit to private investor or to corporations or to municipalities can be an excuse for maintaining a dam which is under reasonable suspicion.

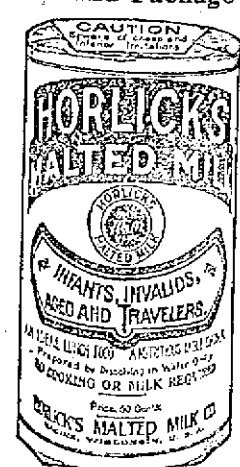

CONAN DOYLE A HOME RULER

Boston Herald: The conversion of Sir Arthur Conan Doyle to Irish home rule is significant of the spread among the opinion that Britain, having given self-government to the over sea dominions, and having seen the plan work satisfactorily, cannot consistently withhold like concessions from Ireland.

Of Irish descent, born in Scotland and educated at the famous College of Stonyhurst in England, Sir Arthur Conan Doyle is a representative citizen of the empire. His enthusiasm and devotion for things British are expressed in his novels, and his work on the Peer War, for which he was knighted, set the seal on his imperialism. Now he comes forward, after having twice tried to enter parliament in the unionist interest, as an avowed home ruler. He believes that there is better feeling among representative nationalists (he admits of course the existence of those fanatics who have stood in the way of their own desires for so many years); local institutions have been tested with success in both Protestant and Catholic Ireland, and the land question is settled. He thinks a solid, loyal Ireland is the one thing the empire needs to make it impregnable.

TAFT AND THE TRUSTS

Johnstown Democrat: Apparently Mr. Taft has not reassured the trusts by his cheerful assumption at Detroit that the Sherman act is "now clear" and that business may proceed under it with a full knowledge of what is lawful and what unlawful. They seem to feel that everything is up in the air and that all may depend on the state of mind of the sitting president. This is precisely the interpretation given by Attorney General Clegg. He holds that there is no longer any definite rule of conduct for business and that it must take its chances with the courts. If it can persuade the judges that it is "good" or that it is exercising only "reasonable" restraint of trade, it is all right; otherwise it is all wrong and must take the consequences. But the insoluble factor in the problem is the judicial state of mind.

TAFT'S TARIFF BOARD

Buffalo Times: In proving itself a costly institution, President Taft's tariff board is a lousy rival of ex-Senator Aldrich's monetary commission. Complaint is now made that the board is nearly out of funds and it is said that it will confine itself to investigating the wool and cotton schedules unless more money is forthcoming. In all about $275,000 has been allowed the tariff board for expenses. That is certainly a substantial sum. It is only fair for the board to give an accounting of how this money has been spent before asking for any more.

The motives for all this hue and cry about crippling the tariff board by about the funds are pretty obvious. It is an attempt to put the faults and failings of the board, and the surrender of Mr. Taft to the standpaters, up to congress. "Give us money to investigate, and we will see what there is to the tariff question," is the purport of this plea. It is falling on inoperative ears, for it amounts to a proposal that congress must either shoulder the expense of a body wholly extraneous to it, or it must own itself to blame. Congress is not obliged to do either. Tariff responsibility, whether for weak or for strong, cannot be shifted from the president and the national legislature to this board, to which Mr. Taft is so willing under the pretext of honoring it, to delegate the duties of his tariff votes.

THE IRISH PLAYERS

"ELOQUENT DEMPSEY" ONE OF THEIR HITS IN BOSTON

There is a good deal of interest in the Irish players now at the Plymouth Theatre, presenting modern Irish plays and attempting to show Irish life in a realistic manner. Having seen one performance we can speak of the plays we saw namely Synge's "Riders to the Sea" and "Eloquent Dempsey," the latter a gem in its way and admirably acted in every particular.

The latter shows the actor the government a politician gets into when he tries to stand by the people and at the same time to sympathize with their oppressors. There are men who can play such a role in real life but they are generally found out. So it was with Dempsey, who could harangue the multitude and criticize the government when an address of that kind was called for; but who could as readily eulogize the government officials and betray the people if he thought that would serve his purpose. The manner in which the plot is developed is highly interesting and the actors are so natural, so plain and unaffected that one forgets he is in a theatre and imagines the scenes are being enacted in real life in and around Dempsey's home in Ireland. He plays the cunning politician who, when the crowd is gathered from his window, when they present him an address of congratulation on his recovery from a felled illness and next when they found him unfaithful and wanted to tear him to pieces, were highly artistic. "The Man of the Hour" and similar scenes in which political scheming is portrayed. The part of Dempsey was assumed by Arthur Sinclair and was certainly well interpreted in every feature.

Miss Sara Allgood played the part of the faithful, patient, sensible and devoted wife, who, in the face of adversity, simplicity, proving at all times equal to the highest demands of the character. She is undoubtedly an actress of rare ability.

In "Riders to the Sea" by Synge occurs the only false sentiment in the entire performance and this was not very noticeable. When the mother sees her son Bartley, the last of her boys, brought in dead and laid on a table, she looks the body over and instead of being overcome in an outburst of grief she reflects grimly upon that her husband Michael, her son Bartley, Shaun and the others are gone, she will no longer have to watch for their coming through the long night when the storm rages on the deep; no, she can rest now for the last has gone. No true mother would thus solace herself upon being bereft of her husband and sons, no matter how much anxiety they caused her.

The Irish players if they want to succeed must guard against any play that has a false sentiment of this kind or something worse. Some of Synge's plays, while they are excellent in all respects but the company has a sufficiently large repertoire without them.

The company has thus far had a successful run in Boston and those who have visited the Plymouth found it a very pretty and cozy little playhouse.

MR. I. L. SHOWEM MEETS A HOTEL CLERK

BODY FOUND IN CANAL A POTASH EXPLOSION

Michael Duffy Thought to Have Cigar Caused Wreck in Broad
Been Victim of Accident Exchange Building in Boston

A gruesome discovery was made late yesterday afternoon, when the body of Michael Duffy was found in the old Middlesex canal in the rear of the Talbot Dredged Chemical Co.'s plant in Billerica.

Mr. Duffy was employed as day watchman in the chemical works, and since the plant discontinued the manufacture of its goods some time ago, when it was decided to shut the place down, he has been the only one there during the day. At noon yesterday he was as well as ever, apparently, and one of his sons carried his dinner to him. He told the boy to come down and see him after school was let out, a little after 4 o'clock.

Later in the afternoon, Daniel Quinn, of the Lowell office of the company, visited the place on business, and not seeing Duffy about, searched through the buildings and was unable to find him. Mr. Quinn then notified the night watchman, Patrick Higgins, who lives nearby, and the two returned to the premises. After searching till 5 o'clock, they found the unfortunate man lying face downward in about two feet of water on the edge of the canal at the rear of the yard. Chief of Police Martin Conway was at once notified and he in turn telephoned to the medical examiner's office in Lowell.

It is not thought that Duffy committed suicide, but it is the general belief that he met with an accident. In the rear of the chemical factory is a high fence, and it is known that Duffy had been in the habit of going outside this fence when he wished to smoke. On the outside there is a steep embankment, at the foot of which is the old canal. It is possible that the man may have fallen from the fence and being rendered unconscious, rolled into the water.

The body was taken in charge by Undertaker O'Donnell.

The deceased was 42 years of age and he leaves a wife and five children.

BOSTON, Oct. 7.—Two men were severely burned in a small room of the Broad Exchange building, 88 Broad street, yesterday afternoon, as the result of an explosion which filled the adjacent portion of the building with smoke, and the loud report of which caused many of the nearly 700 occupants of the 11-story office structure to flee, terrified, for the elevators.

George W. Sarana, aged 22, married, of 6 Alexander street, Roxbury, lies at Grace hospital, his face and hands covered with third degree burns and his hair singed.

Elmer Sharpneck, aged 50, father-in-law of Sarana, living in Winthrop, was sent home from Grace hospital after his hands had been dressed for first degree burns.

Room 320, on the third floor of the building, was wrecked and its contents damaged to an extent estimated at from $300 to $500.

The room, which is about 7 by 15 feet, has been occupied about two years by the Anti-Friction Roller Bearing Co., of which Sharpneck is proprietor.

The two men were in the room together at 4:15 p. m., when the explosion occurred, performing an experiment in which chloride of potash figured, and it is claimed a spark from a cigar one of the two men was smoking caused the explosion.

One of the two men was seen to be smoking on passing into the room just before the explosion and is said to have reluctantly admitted to Chief Grady that smoking caused the damage.

The partition of the room was blown apart over the walls and ceiling were scorched by the blaze which followed, a large window pane was blown out and the glass blown from the door leading to the hall from the next room. While actual damage to the room was not great, injury to plans Sharpneck had in the room may bring the amount up.

C. M. Mead, superintendent of the building, telephoned to the Board of Trade building nearby on Broad street, and an alarm given from there brought Protective company No. 1, Ladder 8 and Engine 35. The blaze was quickly quenched by the firemen with a hand extinguisher from their apparatus.

The two injured men, who remained conscious, were removed in an ambulance from Station 2 to the Grace hospital, operated by Tufts college, on Kingston street.

Superintendent Wade said: "The loud explosion sounded like a falling elevator and frightening many of the occupants of the building, caused them to rush into the halls and to the elevators to see what was the matter. Quiet was soon restored and none was injured in the rush. Acid from the chemical compounds caused the atmosphere near where the explosion occurred to be filled with a thick, pungent smoke, but quick opening of windows prevented any danger to the two men from asphyxiation."

It was said at the hospital last night that Sarana's burns, while severe, are not dangerous unless complications develop.

Herr Paul Stahmann, an experienced Astrologer, of Ober Neuendorf, Germany, says: "The Horoscope which Professor Roxroy worked out for me is quite according to the truth. It is a very clever and consistent piece of work. As an Astrologer myself I carefully examined his Planetary calculations and indications, and proved that his work in every detail is perfect, and that he is up-to-date in his science. Mr. Roxroy is a real philanthropist, and every one ought to avail himself of the professor's services, as there are many advantages to be gained by doing so."

Baroness Blaquiere, one of the most talented ladies of Paris, says: "I thank you for my Complete Life Reading, which is really of extraordinary accuracy. I had already consulted several Astrologers, but never before have I been answered with so much truth, or received such complete satisfaction. With sincere pleasure I will recommend you and make your marvelous science known to my friends and acquaintances."

The Rev. F. C. H. Haskall, Ph. D., Pastor of St. Paul's Evangelical Lutheran Church, says: "You are certainly the greatest specialist and master of your profession. Every one consulting you will marvel at the correctness of your detailed personal readings and advice. The most skeptical will consult you again and again, after corresponding with you once."

If you want to take advantage of this special offer and obtain a review of your life, simply send your full name, address, the date, month, year, and place of your birth (all clearly written), state whether Mr., Mrs., or Miss, and also copy the following verse in your own handwriting: "Your advice is useful, So thousands say, I wish success and happiness; Will you show me the way?"

LOWELL OPERA HOUSE

When the task of selecting an effect man arose in the proper performance of Dante's "Inferno" the management spared no expense to secure the services of one whose knowledge of the illusions produced by sound was artistic as well as realistic. After several weeks of negotiations the services of Thomas Gaffey were secured. Mr. Gaffey has been termed the "David Belasco" of stage effects and created all of the weird sounds used at the New York Hippodrome ever since the opening of that mammoth play house.

Mr. Gaffey is very enthusiastic over his work and says that although the Hippodrome reached to his mind the limit, in effect, Dante's "Inferno" taxes his ability about 20 per cent. more. With the assistance of Mr. Phil Dillon and four other men he creates all the din of the infernal regions.

Dante's "Inferno" concludes its engagement here with today's performances.

From a mechanical engineer to a successful playwright who has his first play accepted by a New York manager and produced on Broadway is the experience of Philip H. Bartholomew, the young author of "Over Night" at the Shubert. Not only was "Over Night" presented but it was an instant success, and it ran for nine months at the Hackett theatre and the New Playhouse, New York. Its success and popularity in Boston is so well known as to need only a passing comment.

Young Bartholomew was just fresh from school a graduate of the Massachusetts Polytechnic Institute, at Troy when he started in with the American Bridge Co. Meanwhile an unexpected deliverance waited him for while gathering intimate knowledge of girders, beams, spans, abutments, and other technical elements of bridge construction, he was burning midnight oil on an entirely different matter. His naturally keen intellect rebelled at the solemn details of blueprints and contract estimation and took very naturally to playwriting.

After leaving the Polytechnic Institute, however, he spent a year at Heidelberg university where he perfected himself in literature and philosophy.

Returning to this country and to Chicago he began his engineering work. But soon tiring of that he became half owner of a stock company in Washington, in which Charlotte W. Lee starred.

"Over Night" his first piece, went the usual round of the managers, several of whom read it and commented on it. Among those who had a "but" for their criticism were Daniel Frohman, Coleman Harris and Ralph Herz. It remained for Manager William A. Brady to make a proposition which was so unobjectionably fair and direct that Mr. Bartholomew at once accepted. The two men quickly came to an agreement as to terms and the result was the successful launching of "Over Night."

"A GIRL OF THE MOUNTAINS."

A new version of the four-act drama by Lem B. Parker. "A Girl of the Mountains" will be seen at the Opera House on Thursday, Oct. 12, matinee and night. This is not a western play, but a society drama telling a strong and interesting story of a girl's love and betrayal, her sacrifices and finally, her success and happiness. The story is simple and straightforward, with strong situations. In addition to this, Mr. B. W. Lee has always taken care to give the production the necessary environment of scenery and costumes. Prices for the engagement are 10, 20, 30 and 50 cents.

"NAUGHTY MARIETTA."

Miss Florence Weber will be heard in the soprano role of "Naughty Marietta," Mr. John Cardo in the tenor role of "Captain Dick," Mr. Garrick Major in the baritone role of the villain, "Etienne Grandet," Miss Cara Sapin, in the contralto role of the slave, "Adah," and Sid Braham as the adventurer, Simon O'Hara. Others in the cast are Miss Clara Gascoigne, Mr. Warren B. Lombard, George B. Scott, etc.

The music is by Victor Herbert and is said to be some of the best music he has composed. The book is the work of Rida Johnson Young, and the story is both romantic and humorous. "Naughty Marietta" comes to the Opera House Saturday, Oct. 14.

KEITH'S LOWELL THEATRE

Wonder, awe-inspiring, but not gruesome, and decidedly interesting is the headline bill at Keith's next week. It is entitled "Menetekel," the Mystery of Babylon, the name being the words mysteriously written on the walls of Babylon while old Belshazzar was having a feast announcing "Babel" approaching finish. Of course "Babel" has been with the angels these hundred years, while the walls of Babylon have long since crumbled of the man, but the ancient mystery of some invisible agency writing on the wall still exists in a manner as mystifying to a Keith audience as the original writing stant was to old Belshazzar. "The Menetekel" mystery consists of a common tennis ball covered with ink which travels up and down and across a large board, and unconsciously by any visible human agency writing whatever words the audience desires it to write. It is not strung on wires nor is it guided in its course. It just "ups and writes" whatever you want it to, defying all the laws of gravity, and filling its audience with wonderment. Seats on the bill are Cooke and Lorenz, the vaudeville millionaires, who have a high class funny bee. The Marquards are direct from the Polies Bergers of New York with their original vaudeville craze. Bud and Nellie Helm are two of the funniest comedians in vaudeville. Carolyn Franklin, William Wilson & Co. present a comedy playlet, the Dore Bros. are leaders in the acrobatic line, and Radlett Rodie Furman is a dashing comedienne. The bill is strong throughout. Tomorrow the usual high class Sunday concert will be given at 2:15 and 8:15. No seats reserved. Seats may be ordered in advance, telephone 28.

HATHAWAY THEATRE

But two more performances of "A Gentleman from Mississippi" will be presented at the Hathaway and the large audiences that have attended during the week have been most favorable and enthusiastic in their criticism. The first performance of the season will be given its initial performance when Jack Chismen, the popular leading man will make his first appearance with the Donald Meek stock company in the powerful drama, "Texas," a play full of human interest presenting several attractive and interesting characters. "Texas" is not without its share of good comedy and Mr. Meek will be seen in a most congenial role as his clever little ingenue, Miss Langdon. Miss Marie Horton will appear in a strongly emotional part in which line of dramatic art she is at her best. Mr. Stevens will assume the heavy role, returning to his original line after a most successful presentation of the senator in "A Gentleman from Mississippi." "Texas" is a play requiring a great amount of stage detail all of which has been carefully and personally looked after by Mr. Meek whose artistic care in staging a production is well known to the patrons of the Hathaway Theatre. This play requires a large and strong cast so that each member will be seen in important roles and to good advantage. Special scenery has been prepared and an elaborate production is assured. Seats for next week's performances are now on sale and may be ordered in advance by telephone. The public is reminded that Thursday, October 12, being a holiday the advance demand for seats for the performances of that day is already great and those who would attend the holiday performances should order their seats without delay. The box office is open daily from 10 a. m. to 9 p. m. Telephone 311.

MERRIMACK SQUARE THEATRE

A visit at the Merrimack Square theatre any afternoon or evening of the week, or on Sunday, should be sufficiently convincing to the ordinary theatregoer that none but the best of refined entertainers are ever seen at Lowell's recognized theatrical centre. If you are among the precious few who do not visit this playhouse, then avail yourself of the opportunity right away and get the best out of life by enjoying the programs given here weekly. If this is not convincing enough, then ask your neighbor what the standard is at this theatre.

For the sacred concerts Sunday afternoon, all refined tastes will be presented by the following named talented artists: Jules Harron, Billy Nickerson, Fred Bates, Dickson Peters and others. Besides the above the photo-plays will be most interesting and of the kind that receive the approval of the state senate. The Merrimack Square Theatre Concert orchestra, Phil M. Lederman, leader, will render a select musical program as well.

For the coming week the Wilton Brothers will be featured. These boys are recognized acrobats and their work is such as to place them in the front rank of their profession. Their comedy dance is most amusing and are first class funmakers.

"Watches of the Night," a one-act play that has won merited recognition in all parts of the country through its production by well known artists, will be the offering next week by our stock company. The piece introduces Mr. Weston in a new role, as well as two new members, Miss Constance Jackson and Mr. Stanley Wood. The latter is a young man with a good reputation in stock and Miss Jackson, who replaces Miss Phelps, is said to be exceptionally clever. She was associated with Mrs. Fiske at one time.

The other entertainers on the bill include Billy Ray, known as the musical child; May Monahan, soloist, and Leslie, Laurie and Quinn, singing and dancing comedians.

The photo-play, will be the very best, and among the list for the first three days of the week are: "The Savanna Star," a western drama; "The Idle Boy," and "The Mate of the John M." a sea drama.

THEATRE VOYONS

The motion pictures of the great flood at Austin, Pa. now being shown at the Theatre Voyons are easily the most interesting news pictures released for some time. These pictures taken but a few hours after the bursting of the dam show the broken dam, the ruined town clearly depicting the path which the flood cut through the valley, the work of searching the ruins for the bodies of the victims and the two heroines of the occasion, telephone operators, who stuck to their posts and saved many lives by their courage.

On Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday the Theatre Voyons will show for the first time in Lowell the magnificent Selig three reel production of "The Two Orphans." This photo play in its dramatic form has pleased millions of people and it ranks as one of the standard dramas that will never grow old. It was the play in which Kate Claxton first gained fame and which brought her managers thousands of dollars. It has been played in every village in this country and has never yet failed to interest and entertain those who have witnessed it. In motion picture form produced as it is in three reels it takes nearly an hour and a half to present and it covers every bit of the famous play. It was made by Selig in Chicago and was staged under the direct personal supervision of Kate Claxton and consumed several months in the making. The acting is the equal of any that has ever been seen on the legitimate stage and it calls for much exceptional work on the part of the company. The scenery, the costumes and the costumes are a big factor in the play and these are complete and correct to the most minute detail.

The story of the two sisters who came to Paris to seek their fortunes is a most appealing one and the interest never flags from the start to the finish and presented as it is in this photo-play it must appeal most strongly to the lovers of both the silent and spoken drama. The presentation will be accompanied by a most suitable musical program quite in keeping with the picture and which will add greatly to its charm. No one who has ever seen this wonderful play of who is at all interested in the best that the dramatic art offers should miss seeing this picture for it is a masterpiece not only of motion pictures but of dramatic acting as well. The Two Orphans will be given afternoon and evening Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday at the Theatre Voyons.

A LITTLE NONSENSE

SIGN OF PROGRESS.

"Do you think people are really making any progress? That we actually gain in knowledge and worthiness?"
"Certainly. Why, hardly any woman bleaches her hair now."

THE WAY IT SEEMED.

"How long have you been married?"
"Since before time began."

ON THE VERANDA.

"Sausages are so delicious. Have you ever tried that fat kind?"
"Only once, my husband is such a good food he won't eat any kind but the links."

FOR BUSINESS REASONS.

"I see your friend, Mr. Waters, has petitioned the Legislature to change his name."
"Yes; he expects to go into the milk business."

AN OPINION.

Playwright—Starr's manager has promised to give a presentation of that comedy of mine, but I don't know when it's to come off.
Critics—Probably the night after it's put on.

AT THE LECTURE.

Freshman—Sir, mark my words.
Professor—I have marked your words and find that you have misspelled 4 per cent. of them. You must improve a great deal. Mark my words.
